'I WANT TO GO HOME,' SHE SAYS IN TEARS AT SAD NEWS FROM RUMANIA

Because she must return to Rumania where King Ferdinand's illness has taken a serious turn, Queen Marie will be unable to visit Boston next week, it was announced today from Louisville, Ky.

The Queen's expected new, under her new and second curtailment of itinerary, to sail from America next Wednesday on the Berengaria. She was due in Boston about Thanksgiving Day.

Her tour will be abandoned at Detroit on Saturday and she will arrive in New York on Sunday morning.

The new schedule calls for the visit to Louisville today, Cincinnati tomorrow and Detroit for one day instead of two on Saturday.

Immediately after she returned to her train at Indianapolis Marie summoned Colonel John H. Carroll, in charge of the train.

"I want to go home," she said.

There were tears in her eyes as she explained new cable advices had come from Bucharest concerning the health of her husband and that the news was not good.

PRINCESS ILEANA UNNERVED.

Another worry that weighed on the mind of Queen Marie was the physical condition of Princess Ileana.

PROFESSOR AND FAMILY POISON MILK VICTIMS

State chemists today were making analysis of food and milk remaining from the breakfast at which the entire family of Professor Alfred Henry Meyer of Wellesley College are believed to have been poisoned and made ill.

It was the milk served at breakfast that caused the illness, the professor said today.

Professor Meyer denied that he, his wife and three children were the victims of any poison plot or that they had been made anything but slightly ill, and then for but an hour or so.

He declared that the case was not reported to the Newton Board of Health, but was reported to the State authorities.

The three Meyer children came running to the door today at the sound of the bell when a reporter called. They had the appearance of decidedly healthy and vigorous youngsters and they affirmed their father's declaration that they had London, Nov. 18 (A. P.).—A Lloyd's dispatch from Alexandria says that the French steamship Braga, bound from Beirut to Mediterranean ports and New York, is ashore in a rough sea on North Aspra Island, near Lipso Island, in the Aegean.

A salvage steamer is assisting the Braga and the steamship Roma is expected to arrive to take off 272 passengers.

The Braga is of French registry and runs in the Fabre line Mediterranean service from New York and Providence, R. I. She is 5,500 tons gross, 415 feet long and was built in 1907 at Glasgow. She was due at Providence, December 11, and New York December 12.

She carries a crew of about 100 and has accommodations for about 120 cabin, and 750 third class passengers.

FIRE SCARE ON 'CHANGE

Fire in the Exchange Building, State and Kilby streets, which houses the Boston Stock Exchange, caused a scare in the financial district today. Smoke poured from the seventh and eighth floors and fire apparatus clogged the streets.

Black smoke, coming from a stubborn fire in the grease shafts of two elevator wells on the Kilby street side, hung like a pall over the district.

Firemen fought the blaze on several floors at once and prevented its spread to offices in the building. Damage was estimated at $6,000.

The cause of the fire was undetermined. It started a short time before men and girl employes in the building arrived to work, with only porters on hand, but had it occurred a little later it would have caused an outpouring of hundreds from the big building.

'PIG WOMAN' IN COURT; RISKS LIFE FOR TRUTH

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "pig woman," was carried into the courtroom here today on a stretcher to testify as the State's star witness in the Hall-Mills murder trial.

She made the 40-mile trip from the Jersey City Hospital in an ambulance. A bed was erected in the courtroom as near the witness stand as possible, from which Mrs. Gibson was allowed totestify.

The "pig woman" made the trip against the vehement protests and advice of the physicians of Jersey City Hospital. Her arrival was regarded as another victory for Senator Alexander Simpson, dynamic special prosecutor in the case.

All attendance records at the trial were broken in anticipation of the "pig woman's" appearance. Hundreds who stormed the court were turned away by State troopers once all seats were filled.

"I will tell what I know when I reach Somerville if I die the next minute. They have been branding me as a liar for four years. I know what I saw."

These were the final words of Mrs. Gibson as she left the Jersey City Hospital at 7:35 a. m. for the long ambulance ride to the local court-house. She made the statement to Inspector Underwood of the Jersey

WOMAN, BURNED BY GAS STOVE FLAMES, DYING

Flames from a gas stove which she was lighting leaped to the clothing of Mrs. Mary Ferraro, forty, of No. 65 Saratoga street, East Boston, today and before rescuers arrived she was burned from head to feet, probably fatally.

At East Boston relief hospital where firemen rushed her, Dr. Arthur G. Holland said there was little hope of recovery.

Mrs. Ferrar's screams were heard by Frank Boudreau, a fireman, who was at work on the piazza of his house at No. 695 Bennington street. He sent in an alarm and with others ran into the house where the woman was found on the kitchen floor, unconscious. Her clothing was burned from her body.

Firemen extinguished a slight fire in the woodwork which did damage estimated at $50.

The Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary Receives No Support from City or State

"One Hundred Years of Service"

Each year increasing numbers of the afflicted look to the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary for free treatment. Seventy-five thousand visits were recorded at the out-patient department, alone, last year. Hundreds more were sent back to their families with eyesight and hearing restored and able to earn their living again.

From the time it was one room and the dream of two men, 108 years ago, until it is now the greatest institution of its kind in the country and the second largest in the world—treating eye, ear, nose and throat—its skill and its charity have made the Infirmary famous. To continue such work, we need $1,500,000. The city's best-known doctors give their services here without pay. Will you send a check?

SIMPSON TO CLOSE CASE WITH PIG WOMAN'S TESTIMONY TODAY

City police as she was being lifted into the ambulance at the hospital door.

When the ambulance reached here two planks were placed over the curb so that it could be backed up the sidewalk to the courthouse steps, thus facilitating the removal of Mrs. Gibson.

The morning session of court was held up until the "pig woman" arrived.

Mrs. Hall Very Pale

An air of suppressed excitement prevailed in the courtroom as the spectators and attorneys for both sides awaited Mrs. Gibson's appearance.

The "bed room scene" was all laid out. The bed, covered with a white sheet and two pillows, was jammed in between the prosecutor's table and the jury box, directly in front of the witness stand.

Special Prosecutor Simpson, who wore this unique spectacles, sat calmly at the prosecutor's table opening telegrams.

The defendants' Mrs. Eleanor Stevens Hall, and her brothers, Willis and Henry Stevens, were in their accustomed places. They regarded the bed with rather bewildered expression.

Mrs. Hall was even paler than usual and garbed in dead black.

At 10:50 a motor cycle patrolman was dispatched down the Round Hock road to direct the ambulance to the front entrance of the courthouse. It was feared the driver might attempt to bring Mrs. Gibson to a side or rear entrance to avoid the crowds gathered in front.

Lieut. Walter Cieciuah directed that half a dozen State troopers clear the crowd from the gallery of the courthouse between the front door and the courtroom entrance as the sick woman was carried into court.

Doctor Waves "Signals"

The trip was made at a snail's pace over unused back roads and took three hours. At no time did the ambulance proceed faster than fifteen miles an hour. A trained nurse and Dr. Charles B. Snyder were in the van with Mrs. Gibson. Her temperature was taken every few minutes.

Half way between Jersey City and Somerville Dr. Snyder signaled through the glass window of the ambulance to reporters who were following in an automobile that Mrs. Gibson's condition was "fair."

Captain of Detectives Harry Walsh led the little procession in a police department automobile.

In the great crowd jamming the courthouse for a glimpse of the woman farmer who rode a mule into the midst of a murder mystery mothers and flappers predominated.

Near the little white bed, piled high with pillows, that served as Jane's witness stand, sat Mrs. Gibson's mother, Mrs. Salome Cervenver. As she waited Jane's arrival she told reporters she wished she could write so that "she could tell the world how much she hates her daughter."

Heavily wrapped in blankets, with the stretcher by her hospital bedside, the "Pig Woman" waited patiently for the moment to start.

Despiaying a stoicism in pain, comparable to the stoicism of Mrs. Hall at her trial, the "Pig Woman" took the preparations for her trip quietly, though at the end of the clared that Treasury Agents Arnold and Russ, held them virtual prisoners at the Hotel Essex, put "the words in their mouths" and forced them to sign statements damaging to Haley and three other skippers who are to go on trial.

Ellis admission cracked the government's case against the four officers and may result in Wilson, Russ and Arnold being called to testify.

Seaman Edward Busker and Boatswain's Mate Fred L. Burnett, testified that Wilson negotiated with rum runners for the purchase of liquor and that he further arranged for its loading, docking, sale ashore and pay to the coast guardsmen.

"Here's $20 but keep your mouth shut," Burnett said Wilson told him after a certain trip.

ACCUSED WILSON.

Although sworn in to protect the government and to secure evidence, Wilson, who in some manner was assigned to the 242 as a member of the crew, did all the trading out at rum row and paid them off, Busker and Burnell asserted.

William Curtin, member of Haley's crew, under cross-examination by Attorney William E. Lewis, counsel for Haley, admitted that his testimony was in reality data which he had been asked to sign in the form of a statement by United States Agents Arnold and Russ at the Hotel Essex, and that he was virtually under guard until he signed. He then refuted his previous testimony against Haley.

Captain Wheeler, who prosecuted the investigation following the baning of the plot by the Boston Evening American, took Busker in direct examination.

Witness said he was a seaman, and was now temporarily serving on the cutter Tampa. Captain Wheeler questioned:

Q.—While you were a member of the 242 did she ever picket the Mary I about the middle of March, 1926? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did you ever see anything go overboard the Mary I? A.—Yes, many times.

At this point a heated wrangle occurred between Captain Wheeler and Mr. Lewis concerning admission of evidence, which was straightened out by a ruling that since the case was being tried by a Coast board more latitude was to be allowed than in civil courts. Mr. Lewis is a civil attorney. Captain Wheeler continued his examination of Busker as follows:

Q.—Did you ever receive any money from Mr. Haley? A.—No sir.

Q.—Did you ever see anyone else receive money from Mr. Haley? A.—No sir.

Q.—Were you ever paid money by anyone aboard the 242 other than your regular salary? A.—I have never been paid by anyone else but I was given money.

Q.—Who gave it to you? A.—Wilson, sir.

Q.—How many times? A.—Twice.

Q.—Was Haley present? A.—No sir.

Q.—How much did Wilson pay you on the first occasion? A.—About $10.

Q.—And on the other occasion. A.—About $15.

Fred L. Burnett, boatswain's mate was the next witness called in direct examination by Captain Wheeler. He stated he formerly was a member of the crew of the 242.

SAW STRANGER ABOARD

Q.—Did you ever see anyone other than members of the crew of the 242 aboard on a trip on duty last March? A.—There was a man aboard one night sir.

Q.—Where did he get aboard? A.—I don't know sir.

Q.—Do you remember whether the 242 went alongside the I'm Alone? A.—I don't remember, sir. I was below asleep.

Q.—Did you receive any money from Mr. Haley about March 25? A.—No sir, not as far as I can remember, but I received some from Wilson.

Q.—How many times? A.—Oh, about two or three times.

Q.—How much did you receive the first time from Wilson? A.—I don't know just what it was, $20 or $30 maybe.

FAMILY OF TEN SAVES FATHER

There are ten good reasons why Samuel Spinazolla of Framingham is in a cell in Middlesex County jail today for a brief six months instead of in a cell in State Prison for a long term of years. The ten reasons are Mrs. Spinazolla and the nine little Spinazollas.

The Framingham man was found guilty of attacking with a dangerous weapon Game Warden James E. Bemis, when the State officer came upon Spinazolla shooting out of season in the Framingham woods.

The defendant's counsel made a dramatic plea for leniency on the ground that Mrs. Spinazolla and the army of little ones would be the real sufferers.

PHILADELPHIA SESQUI DEFICIT $5,000,000

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—The Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, which will close at the end of the month, will have a deficit of between $5,000,000 and $5,250,000. This announcement was made today by Mayor Kendrick, who added that $6,000,000 originally intended for subway construction, would be used to pay the deficit. Authority to transfer the money has been granted by a vote of the people.

The mayor blamed the weather, which resulted in poor attendance, as one of the outstanding reasons for the financial failure. He said that if the anticipated attendance of 15,000,000 had materialized another story might have been told.

recovered quickly and were normal early yesterday afternoon.

Dr. George H. Bigelow, State Health Commissioner, said today that samples of the food and milk have been taken and are in the process of analysis to determine what caused the strange illness in the Meyer family.

Professor and Mrs. Meyer, with Vancleve, nine; Antoinette, ten, and the two-year-old baby faced a lineup of orange juice, cooked cereal, scrambled eggs, toast and coffee at the breakfast, but inasmuch as the baby, who also was ill, had no scrambled eggs, toast or coffee these were eliminated at the outset.

The two older children were sent home from school when they reported ill, and Professor Meyer returned home also, to find the mother and baby sick.

Doctors were called and after treatment the entire family responded within an hour or two, Professor Meyer said.

DAUGHTER SAVES MOTHER FROM WHIPPING BY MAN

Candia, N. H., Nov. 18.—Henry Lents has 60 days in which to nurse the cut on his hand, inflicted by an axe wielded by a brave daughter in defense of her mother, who was being lashed by a horse-whip. Lents will nurse his bruises in the county jail.

There was dispute between Lents and Mrs. Annie N. Beane regarding the property line between their respective estates on Critchett road. It reached such an extreme that Lents visited the Beane home, armed with a horse-whip, and started lashing Mrs. Beane. The daughter, seeing her mother's plight, seized an axe and brought it down on Lents's hand.

Frequent published stories that the King was suffering from cancer have alarmed the Queen.

She cabled to Rumania asking for full particulars regarding the true physical condition of the King. The reply, unrevealed in detail, led to the sudden decision of Her Majesty that she must hasten home.

With a tremble in her voice, Queen Marie told the guests at the Columbia Club banquet in Indianapolis that she had heard "unfortunate news that has made me very sad."

"I feel that this may be my farewell talk to the American people," she said. "I have heard a most distressing piece of news. I am so full of emotion that I can hardly speak coherently. I deeply regret that my trip in your beautiful country is to be terminated so suddenly. I want to tell the Americans how much I love to be with them and appreciate their hospitality. I always want them to remember. I do not know whether I will be able to come back to America, but I hope that I may."

AGAIN BEFORE FOOTLIGHTS

Those bright lights of Broadway are twinkling a "welcome home" these nights to one of its dancing children it had twice thought lost.

She is Dorothy Martin Hillman Carley—Mrs. Dorothy and so forth. If you are a stickler for form—and she has run back to the stage just as she ran away first from one husband and then another.

The second husband was Harry Gray Carley, Back Bay clubman, former Yale man and at one time in the brokerage business in New York with his second father-in-law, Carley having been married twice before, marrying the vivacious but flitting Dorothy just a year ago.

Dorothy married out of the "Little Jessie James" company when she became the bride of "Eddie" Hillman, young Chicago millionaire and vice-president of the Chicago department store bearing his family name.

Within the first month of marriage, the bride ran away from her husband three times. The third flight "took," this one being staged via automobile and train to New York.

In 1925 she secured a divorce from Hillman, and in that October married Carley, whose first two wives had died shortly after marriage.

BULLDOG SAVES 3 FAMILIES

A bulldog awakened his mistress today as fire leaped through the house at No. 375 Ward street, Newton Centre, and saved three families from the flames.

Scratching on his door of the bedroom of Mrs. Watson F. Baker, on the first floor, the dog, an 8-year-old French bull, named "Twinks," aroused Mrs. Baker. Opening the door she found the corridor filled with smoke and the dog just sinking into unconsciousness.

The kitchen was in flames and the fire was spreading rapidly. Baker telephoned in a fire alarm and after assisting his wife out awakened the other occupants.

An invalid, Mrs. David J. Gallagher, attended by two nurses in a first-floor room, was being moved by her husband and the nurses when firemen arrived and prevented the flames from reaching that side of the dwelling.

Mrs. C. B. Kingham and her daughter, Anna, fled from the second floor, and Ethel Gallagher, daughter of the invalid, from a first-floor chamber.

Damage was estimated at $3,000.

BURNING LOVE OF CAROL BARED IN ZIZI SUIT

the six-year-old son Mircea, born of the morganatic union, and whether Mme. Lambrino shall be granted ten million francs damages.

Mme. Lambrino desires that her son shall have the name of Hohenzollern—that of the Rumanian royal household—Charles Hohenzollern.

LETTER TO QUEEN MARIE.

After the separation of Carol and Zizi in 1918 Carol in 1921 married Princess Helen of Greece, by whom he had a son. But later he left her and departed from Rumania with Mme. Magda Lupescu, the auburn-haired daughter of a Jewish merchant of Jassy.

Carol, in one of his letters introduced by M. Salmon, counsel for Mme. Lambrino, wrote to Queen Marie, his mother, begging her to permit him to keep Zizi as his wife:

"Dear Mama—I cannot have Zizi left in this ridiculous and equivocal position, and never could I admit that the child to be born out of our marriage should be considered illegitimate."

The lawyer declared this letter was never answered.

Other letters show that Carol's deep affection persisted even after the marriage annulment in 1919. When ordered to the frontier to guard against possible Hungarian Bolsheviks, Carol wrote:

"ALWAYS MY WIFE."

"Before I go to the front I want you to know that I have made all arrangements for you. Separation is very hard for me. If I only could get leave to come home for a short time I could make things better for you."

On another occasion the then Crown Prince declared in a missive: "I shall always consider you as my wife in spite of everything."

Long after he and Zizi had been aided by the parliamentary decree, Carol wrote:

"I always remember our luminous days together. But the chain is broken. Love of country has forced my hand. Yes, my poor little dear, I am betrothed—to a Princess."

Then by way of consolation, he quoted verses by the French writer, Paul Bourget.

It was on November 16, 1920, that Carol informed Zizi that everything between them was over.

"I am vanquished," he wrote. "Love of my country has forced my hand. I resisted to the last, but circumstances beyond my control compel the decision."

Counsel for Mme. Lambrino informed the court that the birth certificate for Mircea made him an illegitimate child. He contended that the boy was born before the annulment decree became effective. This M. Paul-Boncour, attorney for Carol, combatted.

MARRIAGE LEGAL.

M. Paul-Boncour's defense includes incompetency of the French court to act; that Zizi never contested the annulment in the Rumanian courts; that Mircea was born out of wedlock as, according to the strict legal viewpoint, he could not be considered as having been born within 300 days from the issuance of the nullity decree, and that there was no breach of promise, as the marriage of Carol and Zizi at Odessa was legal until annulled.

M. Paul-Boncour said, he was not appearing for Prince Charles of Hohenzollern or Prince Carol of Rumania, but for a simple citizen, "Charles Caraiman," who, by sacrificing the crown of Rumania, had a right to live in peace.

"The persistence with which Mme. Lambrino brings these suits in French courts sufficiently indicates their scandalous character," he said.

Mme. Lambrino was present to hear her lawyer's pleading. In a velvet mantle and blue hat she twitched her fingers or rubbed her nose nervously as the attorney recited most intimate details of her romance.

Carol was not present.

FRANCE DEPORTS SPANISH PLOTTERS

This was the first contingent of the 80 conspirators ordered deported.

but were informed that the Governor "was not at home."

Though Governor Fuller afterward announced that he had had no intention of slighting the committee but had gone on a shopping tour, the members of the delegation, and their hundreds of friends, believe that the delegation was deliberately snubbed, and accordingly adopted a method of bringing their cause before the Governor in a manner that he cannot overlook.

They drew up their petition asking the liberation of Sacco and Vanzetti, and addressed it to the Massachusetts governor through the American Embassy at Paris.

The French government, fearful since the arrival of the Governor and his wife of violence to them at the hands of rabid Sacco Vanzetti sympathizers, were further terrified today as a result of the new development, and additional guards were assigned to the Fullers, with orders never to leave the guests until they shall have left the soil of France behind them.

trip an ordeal awaits her that may cost her life.

By the bedside sat a nurse ready to accompany the "Pig Woman." Physicians sat or stood about her room. Court officers also were present to accompany Mrs. Gibson on a trip that may be her last.

SIGNS RELEASE

Mrs. Gibson has signed a release, assuming all responsibility for leaving the Jersey City Hospital and relieving the authorities of the institution of any blame or discredit if she has a relapse.

The text of the release signed by Mrs. Gibson at the instance of Dr. George V. O'Hanlan, medical superintendent of the Jersey City hospital, is as follows:

"I, Jane Gibson, on this seventeenth day of November, 1926, do hereby leave the Jersey City Hospital and refuse treatment at the Jersey City Hospital against the advices of the Physicians and surgeons in charge, and I hereby release said hospital from the responsibilities of any and all following such action on my part."

The signing of the release, with the compliance of hospital authorities, brought an end to a situation which might have precipitated a legal battle for the removal of Mrs. Gibson from the hospital for the purpose of testifying in the Hall-Mills trial.

Senator Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, who has contended that Mrs. Gibson was physically able to appear in court, threatened to apply for a writ of habeas corpus if the witness was not in the courthouse at Somerville at ten o'clock this morning.

A group of six physicians in charge of Mrs. Gibson at the Jersey City Hospital issued a bulletin in which it was briefly declared that Mrs. Gibson would not leave the hospital on that day, and that another bulletin would be issued in the morning.

QUESTIONED HER

At the request of the special prosecutor, Inspector John L. Underwood and Captain Harry Walsh of the Jersey City police force interviewed Mrs. Gibson and questioned her about her condition and her desire to testify.

She declared that she was able to testify and that she was very anxious to appear. She finally agreed to sign the statement which would relieve hospital authorities of all responsibility for her act.

The officers communicated with Dr. O'Hanlon and, after he had personally verified Mrs. Gibson's statements, the patient was permitted to sign a release.

Preceding the ambulance on the way to Somerville was a motor car in which Inspector Underwood, Lieutenant Walter Cieciucch and Detective Joseph O'Neill rode.

The trip was made slowly and every precaution taken to safeguard Mrs. Gibson's strength for the ordeal of testifying.

Early in the day she was dressed for the trip, so that immediately upon arriving at Somerville she will be ready for her appearance in court.

ACTION DANGEROUS

How Will Jane Gibson Bear Up in Court Today?

By MARGERY REX

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 18.—How will the "Pig Woman" bear up today when she is brought to court? Will the screen door of wealth through which Mrs. Hall, her relatives and lawyers regard those who knock, intimidate Jane Gibson? Will the presence of her aged and vindictive mother, Salome Cerrenner, weaken her testimony?

Whether Jane walks in or is carried in on a stretcher, it is the Jane astride her mule Jenny that the defense will have to deal with. Mrs. Gibson's story of what she saw that night of Sept. 14, 1922, has never changed or wavered. Cross examination even before this has not contused poor uneducated Jane that she should re-write her short story of tragedy glimpsed under a moon.

Wealth and social advantage have not moved Jane. Only cruelty can "throw" Jane the rider and only such cruelty as that of a mother who turns against her daughter for good reason knows what reason.

Jane has told and re-told her story of the night in De Russey's lane. She knows tragedy when she sees it, from long, intimate association. She has had two unhappy marriages that left her disillusioned enough.

WORRY PILED UP.

Hard work alone promised to yield a return on devotion, yet little came to Jane from her dreary farm. Worry piled up compound interest. She was busy outwitting thieves and tramps. Now when her strong body is racked with illness she must depend alone on her firm will.

Jane must take the "directed" and the cross in examination today. The cross will be severe, for three lives are at stake. Jane has been wrestling with life so long on "cross" examination she is not apt to fail now in her purpose to state what she says she saw.

Along the Raritan there has been peace for the one day court did not meet, waiting this State's witness. Somerville slept. New Brunswick was lively as usual, restaurants filled at the noon hour, every one guessing again who killed and why.

WJZ, with its high gauze of wires, looms up on the road between Somerville, where the trial is held, and New Brunswick, where the defendants have their strongholds of well-invested money and social position. WJZ sets nation-wide ears to hear many stories to tell.

If only WJZ could pick out of the air those ghosts of talk that the dead leaves in De Russey's whisper among themselves. And if the person most hurt by it could only have shut off those who broadcast dangerous entertainment. The eavesdropping guilt.

A local paper stirred up "city"—meaning New York City—reporters inclined to sleep late and be generally slothful on the day off by stating that a meeting of seven of the defense counsel would be held.

IT WAS A FAKE.

A committee immediately rushed out to the beautiful Throwbridge Calloway place in West Somerville to be met by Robert Nelson, "a cousin of the Carpenders," who kindly pronounced the little word "fake."

The Calloway place is one of those wonderful "restored" early houses, or it is a perfect reproduction which the rich who work Wall Street find an excellent as well as artistic remedy for a hard day on the exchange and picking out another mansion for the boutonnieres and the late afternoon hours.

It has a lovely brook to the rear with a row of trees like a Normandy lane. A big "dinner" bell hangs over the door. A little bridge arches over the brook. Counsel for defense, it is said, live here during the trial.

From this exquisite atmosphere, defense must gather its forces to discredit the plain woman who comes from a pig farm.

doctors privately continued to maintain their opinion that her action is an extremely hazardous one from the standpoint of her health.

It was learned that within the last few days somewhat improved after a blood transfusion. Mrs. Gibson was permitted to sit up in bed for a short time. Almost immediately, it was reported, the flow of blood from a cancerous condition was resumed.

Because of this, doctors maintained that it will be virtually impossible for her to take the witness stand in the courtroom and undergo a direct examination at the instance of Special Prosecutor Simpson and a cross-examination which promises to be even more strenuous at the hands of counsel for the defense.

Her chances to testify without an extraordinary risk, it was said, will be best if she is wheeled into the court on the stretcher, propped up with pillows, and then given an opportunity to tell her story. Frequent short recesses to conserve her strength are expected.

One hundred and forty subpoenas have been issued for defense witnesses. Most of these have not been served. It has been said that not more than 40 witnesses will be called by the defense.

These will include, it is said, Felix Di Martini, the private detective who worked in the interests of the Hall family four years ago, and who has successfully fought extradition as New Jersey from New York.

Senator Simpson has not said whether Di Martini would be arrested on the warrant already issued for him if and when the detective comes to Somerville to testify for the defense. It was learned the defense hopes to finish in six days.

MRS. HALL TO TESTIFY

Mrs. Hall and her two brothers will go on the witness stand. That is stated definitely by a representative of the defense. The lawyers are putting much of their hope in the impression they expect Mrs. Hall to make up the jury as the aristocratic wife outraged in family pride by a philandering husband. Mrs. Hall has stood the strain of the trial, which goes into its twelfth day, remarkably well.

The "Pig Woman" is Simpson's most important performer, though Simpson scored heavily the past few days, especially with the volunteer witness, the placed Ira B. Nixon, whose conscious shoved him into court, to the discomfiture of the defense.

Ira B. Nixon testified that E. K. Sover, another witness, told him four years ago that he recognized Mrs. Hall and her brothers in the lane in De Russey's lane the night of the murder. Having at last got them in the lane, Simpson wants the "Pig Woman" to tell what they were doing there.

The peppery Simpson landed again Tuesday when Mrs. Mary Demarest testified that she had been offered a bribe of $1,500 to lift a mortgage on her little home by Felix di Martini, Mrs. Hall's private detective. If she would forget she saw Henry Stevens in New Brunswick the day after the slaying.

THREATENED HER

It is this same Felix di Martini that "the Pig Woman" is expected to say came peering with piercing eyes through a window of her home after she first told her story, and warned her that she'd better forget what she had seen in De Russey's lane, or unpleasant things might happen to her.

A young fellow named Clifford Hayes had been arrested in New Brunswick about a month after the murder on suspicion of knowing something about it.

Then "the Pig Woman," who had kept her mouth tightly closed about certain things her eyes beheld that night, went to an auctioneer named Totten, who had sold some stock for her, told her story, and asked that he tell it to his brother, George D. Totten, then a county detective for Somerset County.

She said she saw Mrs. Hall at the scene of the murder, also Henry and Willie, saw fighting and shooting. A woman in a light dress fled the scene and was pulled back and shot to death.

Later she saw Mrs. Hall kneeling in prayer beside two bodies, "the Pig Woman" said. She is expected to tell all this, and much more again.

She appeared the first day of the trial, and collapsed in the courthouse soon after she was confronted by her aged mother, who is expected to testify for the defense that "the Pig Woman" never left her house that night.

She had kidney trouble, and complications, the doctors said—many complications. She was placed in a hospital in Somerville, and Alexander Simpson swooped down on this hospital with a Jersey City ambulance and removes her to Jersey City against the protests of the Somerville doctors.

STILL VERY WEAK

She was at first reported dying. She is said to still be very weak. A transfusion of blood not long ago gave her some strength. She has followed farming, and pig and chicken raising for years, and had a hardy constitution in the beginning, but it has been pretty well undermined. Alexander Simpson says that since she told her story four years ago she has been the victim of all kinds of petty persecution from her neighbors and others around New Brunswick.

With "the pig woman," Simpson will close his case for the State. He has one or two other minor witnesses who will be examined, and then the defense will begin its attempt to tear the circumstantial evidence to pieces. It will rely on "the pig woman's" mother and a boy to destroy Mrs. Gibson's story, the most damaging of all.

Then, it is said, it will attempt to produce alibis for the defendants. They will try to prove that Mrs. Hall and Willie Stevens were in their home in New Brunswick the night of the murder and that Henry Stevens was at his home at Lavallette. They have nearly a hundred witnesses.

TO PRODUCE DOUBLE

It is said they will attempt to offset Mrs. Demarest's story that she saw Henry Stevens in New Brunswick by advancing the theory of mistaken identity and producing a man who looks much like Henry.

Simpson has undoubtedly made a strong circumstantial case, but how much credence does the jury place in the different witnesses for the State? Will it believe "the pig woman?"

Some of Simpson's witnesses have made excellent impressions on spectators and newspaper writers, at least. Others seemed negative characters. The lapse of time since the murder has certainly not tended to help the State's case, though Simpson has made a strong effort to throw some light on the possible reason for this lapse.

He has made it appear that someone friendly to the Stevens clan used every possible means, including money, to hush things up. Perhaps this very effort may strike the jury as damaging. That he has established the relation between Mrs. Mills and the dead dominie there is no doubt, though he may not have as definitely established Mrs. Hall's knowledge of the affair.

Whatever else may be said of Mrs. Hall, she is a brave woman. I doubt that her stoicism, or whatever you care to call her calmness, is due to lack of heart, because even a woman without heart would have nerves, and nerves give way under a strain like this trial. It takes a species of human courage to stand up under it, and I think Mrs. Hall has that kind of courage.

well, they insist, that she has eloped with the Tech boy, and in fact Tracy seems to be the only one in the community who ventures any other explanation for the disappearance of his ward.

Tracy believes that Lillian was discouraged because of the frequent tiffs between her guardian and various charitable and social welfare organizations regarding her guardianship. He admits that she may have gone with the Tech boy because she knows little of the world outside Stoughton, but he is confident that she is too sensible to give up a life of luxury for love in a cottage.

"This is no Peaches Browning affair," said Mr. Tracey, "not by a long shot. My wife loved this girl who has lived in our home for ten years. After the death of my wife Lillian was taken in charge by one of the organizations and placed in a home in Hingham.

COLD STORAGE TURKEY SCARCE

Cold storage turkeys this Thanksgiving will be conspicuous by their absence.

Only 278,139 pounds of the festive birds are in the storage vaults, Herman C. Lythgoe, director of food and drug division, State Department of Health, finds.

"It is very evident," the director says, "that if we are to have turkeys for the holiday season they must come from the fresh crop and not from the storage warehouse."

Food of various sorts in cold storage aggregated 23,318,782 pounds as compared with 26,513,385 pounds a year ago. The drop was largely due to low holdings in butter, eggs, beef and pork.

For purposes of comparison, Lythgoe compiled the following table:

Nov. 1.	1926	1925
Eggs (doz.)	4,791,520	10,004,6393
Butter (lbs.)	14,442,866	14,944,5382
Beef, frozen (lbs.)	1,597,903	2,564,1419
Roasters (lbs.)	1,363,464	1,230,7500
Broilers (lbs.)	1,005,194	1,17,2328
Turkeys (lbs.)	278,139	26,513,385
Beef (lbs.)	1,514,159	439,1413
Pork (lbs.)	2,611,940	1,230,6500
Lamb (lbs.)	223,965	256,6545

Pig Woman Trial's Heroic Figure, Says Charlotte

By CHARLOTTE MILLS

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 18.—Poor Mrs. Gibson. How brave she is. Risking her life for truth and justice. There are not many people in this world who would do that.

Charlotte Mills

Her willingness to appear on the stand today may mean that she will die soon, but she will die happy, knowing that she has done her duty. Despite the fact that she is called the "Pig Woman," despite the fact that she is a crude farmwoman who lives in a hovel, to me she is the one great heroic figure of the trial.

How can any one doubt the truth of her story after her great sacrifice? One does not risk one's life to tell a lie. She has nothing to gain personally either way. I am sure she would not want to linger in the shadow of death with a lie on her lips.

The defense will have a hard time counteracting the story which falls from the fever-parched lips. I don't think her mother's statement contradicting her will count for much.

It is fitting that Mrs. Gibson should use the last sparks of her life in fighting for justice. She has always been a fighter. She has had a hard struggle against many difficulties, and unhappiness has run through her whole life. Now, at last, she has her great chance to battle victoriously for the right. Noble woman.

With the testimony of Mrs. Gibson, Sena.or Simpson reaches the grand climax of his case—actually putting the defendants on the scene of the murder. Now the defense will have its chance.

Personally I don't see much that the defense can do. I understand that the Hall-Stevens lawyers have not yet fully mapped out their whole plan of action. But there will be hot times in the courtroom when Senator Simpson opens fire on the defense witnesses.

Yesterday being my mother's birthday, I was glad court was not in session. I went out to Van Liew Cemetery in New Brunswick to put flowers on her grave. Poor thing, sleeping there so peacefully—and all this fuss, all this suffering, just because she loved too well.

Mrs. Hall's Calmness Due to Her Pride

By RITA WEIMAN.

Copyright, 1926, by Universal Service

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 18.—Pride has played such a prominent part in the Hall-Mills trial that by this time it has practically become the slogan of the defense.

Each mention of the name of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall carries with it the assumption that family pride alone is responsible for her previous and present silence, her complete immobility in the face of such an ordeal.

Other emotions may be concealed by the great features as it likes a mask. But whatever the lack of visible grief, pain or suffering which might reasonably be expected, even in the most schooled and controlled individual, Mrs. Hall's poise is played up as if it were a prime factor in the entire case.

One might pause and consider that undoubtedly it is. Pride of birth, clan and purse. And, granted this, there comes instantly to mind the question, "Of what use?"

HAS YET INFLUENCE.

It is impossible to avoid the obvious inference that this pride, based only on narrow standards, has no place in our country today.

It is completely false. Its other name is arrogance.

Evidently it has, as well, been a power that reached out tentacles to hold fast in its grip the fear of an entire community.

From all sides come hints of its influence.

"Four years ago, nobody in the country wanted to know anything about the case," said a native with emphasis. "They weren't after investigation."

Yet this family must now sit in court and hear testimony which cries for the silence of the grave, which pleads miserably to be buried with its dead.

I wonder how much pride contributed to the ultimate scandal.

Regardless of who killed those whose voices are so weirdly lifted four years after they had been forever stilled in this world, one vital query comes to the fore:

"What could have been the relations of Dr. Hall and his wife in the intimacy of their home?"

OPPOSITE AS POLES.

The two women concerned, opposite as the poles, are more eloquent expression of the man's reaction to his wife than any written page. One cloaked in traditional reserve, the other yielding with a reckless disregard for consequences.

If pride of lineage could carry her so far, if in these moments of untimely bereavement due to terrible crime, she could summon the bulwark of self-control to such an extent, it is quite easy to picture in the same woman building around herself a wall of autocracy that would not permit a man to forget that her's was the established position, her's the wealth making his position possible.

It is just as feasible to picture a man of the Edward Hall type erring against such a background, afraid to assert himself, accepting patronage in the place of respect.

ILL-ASSORTED PAIR.

A most interesting and ill-assorted pair, these two. Chiefly, because, under ordinary circumstances they were the kind to worry along together, keeping down the blinds against prying eyes.

Whatever the conflicts behind those shutters, Mrs. Hall was determined that her clan must not be offended by gossip or publicity.

NICARAGUA PLOT MOVES U. S. TO WARN MEXICO

Washington, Nov. 17. — Bolshevistic activities emanating from Mexico, which have become increasingly apparent in the tangled political affairs of Central American countries lying between the United States and the Panama Canal, are causing deep concern in Washington.

This situation, intensifying the already strained relations between the American and Mexican governments, has been brought into the open through the appeal to the United States by the new President of Nicaragua, Adolfo Diaz, for intervention to restore peace in that country.

MEANS NAVAL BASE.

An avenue apparently has been opened for the United States to maintain a semi-permanent naval force in Nicaragua to combat "Mexican Radicalism" in countries of the Caribbean.

Such a policy would amount to a virtual American protectorate over Nicaragua, and would not be displeasing to American concerns with large interests there.

Diaz stated that his semi-intervention is necessary to prevent neighboring countries, principally Mexico, from fomenting revolutionary activities.

Diaz was promptly accorded recognition by the State Department which for a year refused to recognize the revolutionists headed by General Emilio Chamorro.

WARNS DISTURBERS.

Diaz's appeal, following upon formal recognition of his government by the United States, has not yet reached the State Department, and any decision upon it must, of course, wait until it has been studied.

In a statement explaining the action of the American government in recognizing Diaz, however, Secretary Kellogg expressed the hope that the new President's offer of general amnesty and Cabinet posts to his Liberal opponents would be accepted and would end the revolutionary condition "which has invited interference from outside sources, a state of affairs which must cause concern to every friend of stability in Central America."

DETECT GUN-RUNNING.

The warning thus expressed was based on official information of filibustering expeditions out of Mexican ports to aid revolutionary forces in Nicaragua and Guatemala, and Diaz's request at least makes possible the employment of American naval vessels to prevent the landing of such arms and ammunition in his country.

Five gun-running vessels have left Mexican ports for Nicaraguan and Guatemalan waters, to the Washington government's knowledge, under circumstances which indicate Mexican official connivance.

Y. M. C. A. FEAST FOR THOSE AWAY FROM HOME

A Thanksgiving Day dinner for men, young and old, away from home on the holiday, has been arranged by the dormitory group at the Huntington avenue branch of the Y. M. C. A.

The boys' division will co-operate in furnishing boys to accompany the men, it being planned to have a boy present as the guest of each man. The committee in charge consists of Charles Butler, Ernest Bourgeois, Harold D. Smith, Clarence C. Beasley, William A. McCormick, R. the Ghroerer and A. C. Quintal.

FOCH ANGERED, SENDS REPLY TO KING

Paris, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Marshal Foch has replied to the letter from King Albert of the Belgians, which categorically denied Foch's quoted assertion that he persuaded Albert not to allow the Belgians to retreat from the Yser in 1914.

The marshal will probably allow sufficient time for the king to receive and consider the communication before permitting its publication.

Foch is said to feel that he was unworthily treated in the king's letter, questioning statements attributed to the marshal by Stephane Lauzanne in Le Matin, which was published in the newspapers at the same time he received it.

(Albert's letter said that when Foch called upon him, on Nov. 16, 1914, his own proclamation to the Belgian troops that mention of retreat would be treason was already three days old. The king denied any recollection of the marshal leaving the memorandum against retreat which Foch was quoted as saying he gave both to the king and to the British commendar-in-chief.)

The tempestuous interview which is reported to have occurred between the king and Foch in 1914 continues to be discussed animatedly by friends of the marshal, who say he has talked more than once about the incident which in his judgement was one of the crises of the war.

NOTED BUILDER OF DAMS DEAD

Worcester, Nov. 18.—Frederick A. McClure, for 28 years city engineer and a descendant of a noted Revolutionary family, died here today at the age of 74, following a protracted illness. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Charles A. Cameron of Worcester.

He attained prominence as a constructor of railroads and dams and was especially noted for laying out the Kettle Brook and two Holden dams and the Pine Hill Reservoir in this section.

In 1870 he was one of the chief engineers in charge of the construction of the Union Pacific Railroad on the Omaha division, and was appointed by a Sioux chief by Sitting Bull, famous Indian chieftain.

Mr. McClure was appointed city engineer of Worcester in 1902 and held that office until 1920, when he resigned, but continued in the capacity of consulting engineer.

His great-grandfather was a member of Benedict Arnold's force in the Quebec expedition during the Revolutionary War.

Lafayette Young devoted his life and all his energy to the welfare of his State and his nation, and both will miss a courageous and able man.

A FLAMING, bursting volcano on an uninhabited island in the Caspian Sea terrified the inhabitants of Baku. It shook the land all about, changed the night's dark clouds into flaming color.

Gradually the superstitious inhabitants will get over the shock and forgot it.

AND BY THIS time, probably, agents of Mr. Rockefeller's Standard Oil have been instructed to stake out claims on what is left of that island. The Standard Oil men read in the paper yesterday, "Eruptions from the volcano consisted of great columns of oil-soaked earth, accompanied by sheets of flame 300 feet high."

One man's superstitious fear is another man's oil dividend.

MUSSOLINI tells you what Italy intends to do in the way of world conquest, and Italians with Mussolini's spirit go ahead and do it.

You notice that Major Bernardi of the Italian army, flying for the Schneider Cup last Saturday, broke every record except the three-kilometer record. Yesterday he went after that record, held by an American officer, and got it.

ITALY IS RICH, not in money, but in ambition. You wouldn't hear Mussolini saying, as officials of our government say, "The government has no funds to establish speed records. That must be left to private initiative!"

Mussolini knows that every national triumph is a national inspiration, pushing the country ahead.

GOOD NEWS from Washington says Hiram Johnson of California, stirred by the victory of Italian aviators and American inferiority in the air, will make this country's air defence part of his business.

California is destined to be the greatest flying State in the Union, and Hiram Johnson of California will not let go, once he takes hold.

THE FIRST 63-hour trains from Chicago to the Pacific Coast came screeching in together yesterday, the Chief over the Santa Fe, and Racer, over the Union Pacific, and the Los Angeles Limited, over the Southern Pacific.

That gives each arriving traveler an extra whole business day in California and, better still, an extra day of California sunshine.

GENERAL ATTERBURY of the Pennsylvania, why don't you come into this California situation, through partnership with one of the Western roads?

Paul Shoup of the Southern Pacific is in New York now. Tell him about your 24-hour train from New York to St. Louis, buy enough railroad track west of St. Louis to connect with the Southern Pacific, which you can do easily, and run cars without change from Broadway and Thirty-third street to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

ANOTHER suggestion to railroad men: Start now preparing your air routes from ocean to ocean. If you don't, somebody will get ahead of you.

THE LATEST about the "annulment" of the Vanderbilt-Marlborough wedding says the marriage was declared null and void because the young woman, Consuelo Vanderbilt, when only seventeen years old, was forced and coerced into the marriage.

That is nonsense. The young woman was delighted with the marriage, a very grand one, and, as you know, her father contributed seven million dollars for the decorating and plumbing of Blenheim Palace and the decoration of the Duke. W. K. Vanderbilt would have allowed no coercing.

MRS. O. H. P. BELMONT, the Duchess' mother, who was then Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, helped the marriage along, saying, quite sensibly, that, marrying a Duke, her daughter would have a career and see something of life, which would be better than marrying "some little Newport cocktail-drinking, cigarette smoker."

THERE WAS no coercion, but the divorced Duke and Duchess, both married to Catholics since their divorce, are living technically in a state of sin, since the Catholic Church does not recognize divorce.

But with the $7,000,000 Vanderbilt-Marlborough marriage declared officially off, as something that never existed, the Duke and his former Duchess can be married all over again by a Catholic service. After that, there won't be any sin. On the contrary, everything will be serene. Why not have it so?

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, say a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation.

HOLD FUNERAL SERVICES FOR JOHN J. HANRAHAN

A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated today at St. Catherine's Church, Somerville, for John J. L. Hanrahan, sales manager of the Downes Lumber Company, who died on Tuesday, after a few days' illness with pneumonia. Mr. Hanrahan, born in Boston thirty-eight years ago, was associated with the lumber concern from the time he left school and was one of Boston's most prominent retail lumber salesmen. He is survived by his wife and four children, a brother and two sisters, Mrs. William T. Boland of Ashmont and Mrs. Frank G. Lynn of Dorchester.

FIND 'WILD' CHILDREN IN CONNECTICUT HUT

Hartford, Nov. 18 (A. P.)—Living with their father in a ramshackle hut in the Litchfield Hills, three children who had never seen an electric light, a gas jet or water running from a faucet have been found by the Connecticut Children's Aid Society, according to a report made by Ralph Barrows, executive secretary of the society. Their home was within forty miles of Hartford.

The children are ten, seven and three years of age, the eldest being a girl. Given their first ride in an elevator they were filled with terror. existence of the motherless family, said the children had succeeded in

Mr. Barrows, in picturing the obtaining a meagre bit of public school learning which they had snatched with difficulty during their nomadic lives.

HUNTING PIRATES WHO ATTACKED BRITISH SHIP

Hongkong, Nov. 18 (A.P.)—A boatload of passengers from the British steamer Sunning, which was boarded by pirates 80 miles from here Monday night and badly damaged in a fight which ensued between the buccaneers and two officers of the ship, has been brought here by the British destroyer Verity.

Twelve pirates were killed in the fight. The attackers fired the ship, but the timely arrival of the British cruiser Bluebell saved it from destruction. Nine of the pirates were captured and the Bluebell is hunting others who escaped in a lifeboat.

SOVIET TO ABOLISH ALL LEGAL MARRIAGE TIES

London, Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Telegraphing from Moscow, the correspondent of the Daily Express says the Soviet Legislative Assembly has endorsed the government's proposal to abolish the registration of marriages, which is the only legal matrimonial tie in Russia. Henceforth marriage will only involve the recording of marital conditions on an identity card, which will be stamped for a small sum. A couple then may live in or out of wedlock as frequently as they wish, and while they have no children they will not be troubled by the court.

Fashion Show Goes Big at Crittenton Bazaar

AN OUTSTANDING FIGURE

Miss Agnes Murchie wore a rich gold sequined frock in the Fashion Parade at the Florence Crittenton League Bazaar.

BRIDE ON PARADE

The tulle and silver gown worn by Miss Helen Streeter was much admired at the Florence Crittenton Bazaar.

SISTERS AID CHARITY

Misses Mary and Susan Hammond were bridesmaids in lovely white taffeta frocks and carried red roses.

All pictures posed especially for the Boston Evening American last night at the Copley-Plaza.

THE FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE BAZAAR has a sure-fire winner in its Fashion Show. A bewildering array of frocks upon a bewilderingly pretty set of girls is a tidbit served up twice today at the Bazaar at the Copley-Plaza. They made a first appearance last evening. A famous old Boston firm (it numbers its years at three score and ten and a little over) loaned an endless variety of feminine fripperies for the Show. Ravishing dance frocks, frocks for the morning, the afternoon, the evening; intimate boudoir creations, and shoes, and hats and gloves and accessories by the score.

FAIR JUNIOR LEAGUERS HELPED the good cause along by playing the model roles. They did lightning changes from street frocks to dinner gowns, to trig sports outfits, to glorified boudoir outfits fit for a princess. Onto the stage and off time and again. General Hugh Bancroft (he and Mrs. Bancroft were among the first arrivals) led in the applause which greeted every girl as she stepped into the footlight glare. Mr. and Mrs. George Swinnerton Parker, Mrs. Frederick Page Royce and Miss Harriet Royce, Mrs. Walter Merriam Pratt were in the audience.

SOCIETY FINDS AN OPPORTUNITY, even in the present whirl of events, to spend a quiet half hour in a favorite picture gallery. In the restful atmosphere of the Vose Galleries the marines of Clifford W. Ashley, blue as the sea and fresh as its salt breezes, are magic attractions. A New Englander and hailing from New Bedford, Mr. Ashley knows like a book his subjects—the old whalers and the old days of that important industry. And faithfully has he translated his theme into brilliant colors.

HE DROPS INTO TOWN FREQUENTLY to visit the Gallery and to confer with his publishers. For Mr. Ashley seconds a gift with the brush by a gift with the pen. He has a delightful just-off-the-press book, and that, too, deals with New Bedford's now finished, but ever fascinating industry.

MRS. ROBERT TREAT PAINE WAS A VOSE GALLERY visitor recently. In gleaming black, flecked here and there by a line of white, Mrs. Paine was simply perfect from smart buckled shoe to trim chapeau. A handsome matron, Mrs. Paine. One who injects into frock or hat her own vivid personality. Who wears with a costume of black a single strand of perfectly matched pearls, and makes a regal figure.

MRS. PAINE IS LENDING HER GOOD OFFICES to today and tomorrow's "Caravan" at Horticultural Hall. "Caravan" benefits the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club in Fayette street and interests an important Smart Set coterie.

WHEN THE NAME OF MRS. BARRETT WENDELL appears as sponsor for one of Chicago's most important functions Boston feels much interested, for Mrs. Wendell is to the Boston manner born and bred. She was a Miss Higginson, and various family connections go to make up that small inner circle which holds the reins over society and strives to maintain it within its old exclusive circles.

MRS. WENDELL IS ONE OF THE CIRCLE directing the horse show in the Riding Club, an affair blazing brilliance across the Windy City's social skies.

Betty Allen

SHOWS 'IDEAL BREAKFAST'

A cloth with a bright pattern is a colorful centre piece of fruit, adorned with bright splashes of color, the hostess herself pouring coffee and putting in the sugar and cream.

That is the ideal breakfast table as announced by Mrs Mizie Irvin in the Jordan Marsh Company auditorium before scores of interested women whose questions came almost unceasingly.

The tea talked and its appointments also were gone into by Mrs Irvin, whose afternoon session at 2:30 will continue through tomorrow.

It is always well to use service plates for the tea table, she told the women listeners, as they add to the pleasing appearance.

There should be no pairs or forks, no passing of the cups. Let the hostess or maid do all of the fruit on the table for dessert, but no offerings of a second helping and no over-eating by guests.

A silver tea service and fairly elaborate tea cloth are the things of chief importance in making the meal restful and satisfying, she said.

THE GREAT ATLANTIC & PACIFIC TEA CO.

DOGUEREAU HAS TONE OF MUCH BEAUTY

By MOSES SMITH.

Paul Doguereau, who made his Boston debut at Jordan Hall last night is a young French pianist who will bear watching. Looks are more or less deceptive, but a student fresh from the Latin quarter of Paris as young man showed the sincerity and seriousness and self-effacement of much of an artist's jacket.

Paul Dogureau

In his present recital M. Dogureau is a poet of the piano. His program, consisting of items rarely heard in Symphonic Etudes, a group of Chopin pieces and a final group by Debussy, offered him ample opportunity for rhapsodic like playing, and it was this quality which he indulged.

His tone is of unusual beauty and skilful pedaling increases its ability in its realms of color. A master of dynamic control, he can pound with the best when pounding is called for. On the whole he has technical resources are adequate to meet the demands of the most exacting score, although last night he did make one or two slips which may be a result, perhaps, to a slight nervousness.

If there is a fault in Dogureau's playing it is that he is too much the poet. Under his hands the broader outlines of the work in question themselves, and the whole becomes a thing of line and color. There is a tendency for too much repose also. But the fault is not to be considered despite criticism as much as to an endowment which is natural in a young man. It is better and more healthy to find a young artist overrestrained rather than too excited.

The pianist played the Chopin "Winter Wind" study with great zest and dash, and he was so much applauded that he promptly repeated the difficult work. There were other extra numbers in response to the audible of an enthusiastic and very large audience.

FRIEDA HEMPEL COMES TO HUB NEXT SUNDAY

Frieda Hempel, who has returned from a successful European tour, makes her only visit of the season to Boston next Sunday afternoon, when she will give a recital at Symphony Hall.

Her program is made up largely of operatic arias from Handel, Rossini, Saint-Saens and Havel. An aria from Boito's "Wedding" and songs of German composers are also on the list. In some of the numbers Miss Hempel will be assisted by two flute players.

Schipa Recital

Tito Schipa, the tenor, who has been heard here with the Chicago Opera company, is a singer who is equally at home on the concert stage. He will give a recital at Symphony Hall Sunday afternoon, November 28.

EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS IN FILM HERE

In commemoration of the recent Eucharistic Congress in Chicago this historic church assemblage has been carefully filmed and will be shown at the Boston Opera House beginning Sunday night.

The first local exhibiting of the picture will be made under the patronage of Cardinal O'Connell Archbishop of Boston, and a committee of prominent Catholic laymen. The attraction is further sponsored by Cardinal Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago, for whom the film was prepared, and to whom it was presented as a gift by William Fox, president of the Fox Film Corporation.

Preceding each performance at the Opera House, a stage program specially arranged by S. L. Rothafel—better known as "Roxy"—will be given. This will be symbolic of the struggles of the Blessed Eucharist for the hearts of men since the institution of the sacrament. In Apostolic times, beginning with the early secretive affirmation in the catacombs and ending with the triumphs of the Congress given in 'the Sacramental Year.

Drawing its pilgrims from every quarter of the globe, it was necessary that the Congress meet in sectional groups—both on account of the vast crowds and the 21 different languages and dialects used in beseeching. As it was impossible for anyone to have attended all these meetings in Chicago, the motion picture is intended to mirror the spectacle in its entirety and with detail.

For musical accompaniment to the film, an orchestra and organ will render appropriate selections from the Fox library of liturgical music in the Roman Catholic Church.

IMMIGRANTS TO VIEW HISTORICAL MOVIES

Motion pictures are now being shown in the steerage of transatlantic vessels as part of the entertainment program for immigrants.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis and Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, went aboard the S. S. Leviathan, recently and inaugurated the service, which is to be started at once by all United States lines' vessels, and which is to be used on other ships later.

Part of the film "Abraham Lincoln" and a special "Immigration" picture made for the State of Connecticut were shown as the giant steamship came into New York harbor.

Hub Girl to Sing

At the only Boston appearance of Pompeo a Symphony Band next Sunday evening, Ida Verbini, a Boston girl, who has recently returned from successes in Italy, will be one of the soloists. She will sing operatic arias. Master Roberto Pompeo, the 8-year-old son of the conductor, will play piano solos.

Too Late!

Charlie Murray, recently bought a very large and expensive car. But he won't hire a chauffeur. Says he:

"The time I needed a chauffeur was when I had to drive a Ford."

THEY LOOK ALIKE BUT WHICH IS WHICH?

BEAUTIFUL BUT DUMB

Though many dancers claim they have had a dummy for a partner at some time or other, here's one who does it deliberately—and likes it. She is Billee Maye, of the Roye and Maye Revue at B. F. Keith's. The brilliant-looking whachemecallit on the left is the dancer's dumb darling.

Corinne Griffith Will Join United Artists

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

NEW YORK, NOV. 18.—The sealed lips of Corinne Griffith as to her future plans will open shortly now to announce a new contract with United Artists. She has steadfastly refused to announce her plans. She has one more picture on her present contract to make for Associated First National, after which, I am told from one who should know, she will join Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin, Norma Talmadge and John Barrymore at the United studios.

In spite of Miss Griffith's silence, it is said a contract with her signature is already reposing in the safe in Joseph M. Schenck's office. John Considine is being given credit for negotiating the arrangements, although both he and Mr. Schenck are as silent as Miss Griffith as to an actual verification.

Corinne Griffith

IF STUART PATON, A DIRECTOR who has just been signed by Irving Thalberg to make Westerns for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, cared to tell the story of his experience, Rex Beach, Jack Boyle and Peter B. Kyne could use it for one of their magazine stories. In other words, I am not copyrighting it.

Mr. Paton has been blind in one eye for many years and during the Hollywood fights staged to help the American Legion some patriotic soul threw a silver dollar into the ring with such energy it hit Mr. Paton's glasses and almost ruined his good eye. Then followed weeks of illness, which was so serious a doctor finally pronounced him dead. They took what is technically called the corpse to a mortuary and were about to prepare him for burial when he came to life. Strange to say, he got well.

At that time he had a contract with Universal but naturally it was not renewed. Then he made a picture for Ben Wilson and Irving Thalberg saw it and at once engaged him. As for the death certificate, that is now framed. Possibly some day Mr. Paton will do a story on the sensations that come with death.

BRITISH AUTHOR KILLS HIMSELF

London, Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Believing himself a failure, although several of his works had been declared successes and with an American publisher requesting him to write a series of books Allen Upward, lawyer and author is dead. His body was found in his residence near Wimbern with a bullet wound through the heart—probably self inflicted.

Upward's best work is considered "The Domino Club," demands for which for moving picture and dramatic rights were made. Several weeks ago a new novel by the author appeared and was a pronounced success. An American publisher was asking for a series of books with the same central character as "The Domino Club," published in the United States under the title of "The Club of Masks."

TWO MILLION DOCKS ON PHILIPPINES ALREADY DISTRIBUTED

IN a nation-wide campaign against pyorrhea, two million packages have already been distributed in different large cities.

This 24-page book, fully illustrated, traces pyorrhea from its earliest days to present time, and is full of information about these different forms of this disease.

Although quota for New England was soon exhausted, another allotment has been received for free distribution by the Epstein Drug Co., Scollay Sq., Boston.

Distribution made possible through courtesy of makers of Wedena tablets, which have proven so effective in treating this painful malady.

Next week-end, where will you get it? Why, you don't have to send away for it. Keep a good word during the year's greatest travel bargain in American-Advertiser Classified Ads.

ALL GOODFELLOWS ARE ASKED TO GIVE DIRECT XMAS AID TO POOR

EAST BOSTON BUSY IN HELPING SANTA

Help DIRECTLY!

In brief, that is the essence of the Christmas Goodfellow movement inaugurated by the Boston Evening American for the purpose of relieving the destitution in New England at Yuletide.

By having persons assist impoverished families directly, this newspaper believes a double benefit ensues. Through this method, the giver is benefitted as well as the recipient. Happiness comes not only to the family in needy circumstances, but also to the more fortunate in distributing who extend a helping hand.

Hundreds of letters appealing for assistance at Christmas, some asking clothing, others food and still more requesting fuel, have been received by the Boston Evening American, and are now on file in this office.

Don't you wish to become a Christmas Goodfellow and like one of those happy children and generous mothers extended to you for help? If so, write at once and we will gladly furnish you the name and address of one or more families for you to play the role of Santa Claus.

ON GOODFELLOW LIST.

Among those who have already offered to aid families are Mrs. M. J. Richman of No. 835 Hittard street, Cambridge, who desires to take care of a widow and five or six children, and Mrs. W. D. Burnham of Beverly, who asked to be put in touch with a family containing two young children, in order that she might supply toys and candy for Christmas.

Both of these women have been elected Christmas Goodfellows. We are sure they will feel much better on Christmas as a result of having helped several unfortunate families.

The majority of the letters appealing for aid which have been received by the newspaper were written by children and young mothers, although a few were written by the aged men and women who have known prosperous days.

Each letter is filled with details revealing the hard struggle of the writers and their families to keep going.

WIDOW WRITES.

Persons who are too busy to care for families directly may use the Boston Evening American as an agent. The newspaper will be glad to purchase substantial articles of clothing, food, fuel, etc., with contributions sent in, using every effort to select for that purpose and distribute them to persons known to be in dire circumstances.

A Lynn ship named Phillip from the North End writes:

"We will not have anything to eat but Christmas. All we have is a pound of potatoes. We are always hungry in my family. PLEASE, give me some food. Thank you."

An aged widow, also from the North End writes:

"I am a widow, sixty-nine years old. I just came out of the hospital after three operations and I am not able to work. Please do not forget me as I am in need. My Christmas will be a poor one."

Another widow who lives in Everett and who is discouraged writes:

"As I am a widow and have three children to support I would like you to send me an Xmas basket some days we have nothing in the house to eat. We all hope you will remember us. We are very poor and need these things or I should not ask for a basket."

A little lad named Frank A. who lives in North Cambridge writes:

"I am a little boy four years old. My papa is dead and my mother is sewing and can work only a few days out a time to pay the rent. She is out of coal and we are going to have no fire. If you have any toys and candy to spare send me a train—if you can. I live in a cold hallway and it is cold in the end of the. I would be glad if it as my cap is cold. Please write to me. I will be looking for a letter from you—for no one ever writes to me."

EAST BOSTON HELPS.

Many East Boston persons are helping further the Christmas Goodfellow movement in various ways. Among other things the moonlight picture and vaudeville shows have been arranged at East Boston Theatre, the entire proceeds to be turned over to the Christmas Goodfellow Fund. One midnight show will be at the Gem Theatre on November 20, and another midnight show will be at the Bay Street Theatre on December 11.

Among those who are assisting to make the Fund a success are William Barker, Mrs. William Barker, Rep. William Hanahan, Matthew J. Mendrum and Lavan Silver.

The New England Theatres Operating Company, of which Jacob Lourie is president is assisting in making the Christmas Goodfellow movement a success. This company controls the following theatres—Paramount, Bowdoin Square, Dudley and Codman in Roxbury, the New Morton in Dorchester, the Somerville in Somerville, the Revere in Revere, and the Modern and Beacon in Boston.

ASK LEAGUE TO CALL ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

Geneva, Nov. 18 (I.N.S.)—Recommendations that the Council of the League of Nations summon an international economic conference to meet in Geneva May 4, 1927 were made today by the Economic Preparatory Committee. The committee recommended that one person "representing an economic interest" to send five delegates, named by the government concerned but working independently of the governments.

Rutland, Vt. Nov. 18—A big touring car, containing four smuggled aliens, was seized by Federal officers at Pittsfield, eight miles north of this city, after they had forced the machine into the ditch. CAROLINA GETS RENOVATION

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 18.—The Carolina Hotel here, largest hotel in the state of North Carolina, has been completely renovated this Fall for the seven-month Winter resort season, the outstanding feature being the installation of the most modern fireproof sprinkler system available.

This sprinkler system has passed the most rigid tests that fire inspectors could devise and is expected to set a new precedent in safety for resort hotels, being declared about 95% fire-proof in addition.

The new sprinkler system with its attendant fire alarm cost $40,000, according to a figure estimate of $27,000 for installation.

Among modern improvements made is that it was provided in all but 40 guest rooms in the Carolina, and the addition of a music room at an expenditure of $15,000 making a total of 150 private baths outside of the three suites and infirmary of Pinehurst.

BIG CHANCES IN SO. AMERICA

South America is a land of scenic grandeur, undeveloped wealth and industry in which there are numerous opportunities. In the last few years it has become better known to the traveling public of the world, not only on account of its many attractions offered to the tourist, but the business man for its commercial activities and potentialities, which are to be unlimited.

Every normal tourist visits Rio wonderment that South America is so far away and that he did not go there and spend a month or two in Brazil, Uruguay and the Argentine. Why not the voyage be taken for the purpose of business or pleasure, or both in the word that offers to the traveler such a wealth of scenery and places of interest as South America.

No country in the world offers greater delights than South America. The city of Rio de Janeiro, famous Montevideo and Buenos Aires.

On account of the reverse seasons South America is now enjoying ideal sailing weather, and soon the opera season will open in Rio, and the wonderful beaches will be frequented by fashionable people from all over the world.

The Carnival or Mardi Gras at Rio de Janeiro is one of the greatest festivals in South America and will take place between February 27 and March 1, 1927. This celebration compares in gaiety with that of New Orleans or any European city.

The passenger fleet of the Munson Line consists of four steamers, namely: the American Legion, South Porto Rico, Western World and Pan America. These steamers are of 21,000 tons register, oil-burners and of the latest type of passenger carriers. There is wide deck space. The lounges, smoking room and the other public rooms are luxuriously appointed. All staterooms are outside and most of them are equipped with beds instead of berths. There is a large swimming pool on board.

Deck games, dancing and concerts are some of the other entertainments which are planned for the Munson Line passengers. At this time of the year this company runs special tours to South America of six and seven weeks.

Literature and further information on South America and how to get there may be secured by writing to the Hotel Resort and Travel Bureau maintained by the Boston American and Advertiser at No. 92 Summer street, Boston.

CUNARD LINE PLANS CRUISES

This coming winter the Cunard line will operate three cruises to the West Indies. The Franconia will leave on Dec. 23 and the Caronia will leave on Jan. 22, 1927, and again on Feb. 26.

The Franconia is making a cruise to the West Indies at Christmas and New Year holidays. This is a tempting innovation, for people, unable heretofore to take the time necessary to see the West Indies during the winter, will heartily welcome it.

Coming at a time when many professional people have a holiday and a shorter time than most winter cruises, yet covering all the principal and interesting points. For those who have more leisure the two Caledonia cruises of 31 days each offer a choice of dates and the utmost in cruise comfort and interest.

The itinerary contains a list of practically all the ports in the West Indies which is a kind of panoramic scene can safely and conveniently visit. There is no other way in which you can see so much of the historic Caribbean, Spanish Main and West Indies in so short a time, at such small cost and comfort.

The stay of the ship in each port is just long enough to allow you to visit the most interesting features and not long enough to become bored.

Reservations for any of these cruises may be made at the Hotel Resort and Travel Bureau conducted by the Boston Sunday Advertiser and American at No. 92 Summer Street or the Cunard Line at No. 126 State Street.

This booklet gives a brief history and describes the places of scenic interest which are visited by the ships of the Great White Fleet.

The booklet also contains a map of the West Indies and a list of the various services maintained by the United Fruit Company to the tropics from the different ports of the United States.

A copy of this booklet and further detailed information on these trips may be had by writing to the Hotel Resort and Travel Bureau conducted by the Boston Evening American and Advertiser at No. 92 Summer street, Boston.

DREDGER DOROTHY WILL BE RAISED

The dredger Dorothy, partly submerged during the Tuesday blow off E. Boston, will be raised within a few days, according to Beadle Contracting Company, owners of the craft.

The Dorothy was dredging the basin of the Bay State Hauling Company at the time of the gale. All on board reached shore safely.

CRUISES TO PORTO RICO PROVING POPULAR

Porto Rico is well named when it is called the island of enchantment. Within its 3,600 square miles nature has gathered in close association a glorious display of mountain and valley scenery, dense jungle and open, rolling country, tropical waterfalls and rural settlements, primitive life and modern city activities, land of quiet, fascinating, delightfully foreign and above all a land of hospitality. Porto Rico lies 1,400 miles southeast of New York and 1,000 east of Key West.

To this "Island of Enchantment" as Porto Rico Line has christened it, no popular cruises. Each of these embraces two weeks, but you can tour the island in four days. On tour No. 1 a steamer serves as a hotel for the entire stay at San Juan. While on tour No. 2 the passenger is entertained at the Condado-Ancon Hotel for the entire period. Full information and literature on these cruises may be had by writing to the Hotel Resort and Travel Bureau conducted by the Boston Sunday Advertiser and American at No. 92 Summer street, Boston.

FASTER TRAINS TO COAST

It is still the same distance to California, but it doesn't take as long to get there as it did last week.

Beginning last Sunday the Santa Fe Railway placed a new train, The Chief, in service that consumes only two business days between Chicago and the Pacific Coast. It is an extra fare train with new sleeping equipment throughout, and provides a special lounge for the ladies.

Ten complete trains have been purchased and the service is a daily one, leaving Chicago at 8 p. m. and arriving at Los Angeles 2 p. m., thus saving a business day. The Chief is announced as a luxury edition of the old De Luxe, but the trains formerly ran weekly between the two cities.

JAZZ AND CHARLESTON AT TURKEY'S SUBLIME PORTE

Constantinople, Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Imperial tradition again has received a rude blow from the modern Turkey.

For one night the Sublime Porte, the famous edifice from which grand viziers once hurled their decrees, was transformed into a dancing hall by the Governor of Constantinople, Suleman Izani Bey, in celebrating the third anniversary of the new Republican regime.

The palace resounded with the jazz of an American negro band and the sound of the feet of hundreds of couples, the elite of Constantinople society, shuffling to the Charleston.

One of the most noteworthy features of this occasion was the fact that Madame Izani Bey, unveiled and in full evening dress, received in line with her husband, the Governor, and other officials. This was the first time that a Turkish woman had ever been in the reception line of an official affair.

By JOAN STUART.

"Hold on there, young woman!"

A traffic officer grabbed me by the arm and did a Sir Galahad by pulling me back from hasting my toes gently squashed by a thoughtless truck.

"What's your hurry?" he wanted to know.

"I want to get one of those cute little character dolls before they're all gone!"

"Oh, you Christmas shoppers!" he threw up his hands in mock despair. "Of course, he knew all about it!

"Tell me fair sir, are these customs quaint and curious of custom?"

"Aye, very."

"And what, pray, must one offer as consideration for the purchase of oddness?"

BEFORE IT'S TOO LATE.

"But 35 cents, upholster of the law's majesty."

"Come, maiden, rush me thither that I may also arrive before it is too late."

So saying, he blew loudly upon his whistle. All traffic halted and we sped, without danger in the direction of the curbstone.

But he said and did no such thing. The end of the story in reality is:

Officer: "Get your face off the sidewalk now and stay there until you get the signal to cross."

I walked sheepishly back to the curb.

"Now will you do it, again?" someone asked me.

It was Ann Nicholson.

"Either come on shopping with me, will you Ann? Two of us have a better chance than one."

"My dear, you're late. I just bought my last gift and I'm quite mad about it."

"What is it, and for whom?"

FOR MOTHER.

"It's for mother, and if you saw it you'd swear it was real old to look. It is a decanter and six mugs of Mexican glass. There never was anything quite so crude, yet quite so trick. The bubbles are still in the glass. No two mugs are alike, although they are all supposed to be. The decanter is slightly lopsided, and the whole outfit might have come from some shop that was making glassware when the patriots were pouring tea in Boston Harbor.

"Was it frightfully expensive?"

"Not at all. The decanter was $5 and the mugs 75 cents each and there were other things for $1 and more."

I was awfully interested. Any number of my friends have a bug for antiques and consider any addition to their collections more welcome than precious jewels. So I started away to get a set.

CHRISTMAS PAGEANT TO BE GIVEN MONDAY

The annual Christmas pageant given by the fine arts department of Boston University School of Religious Education will be produced in the Copley Methodist Episcopal Church next Monday.

A program of Christmas carols, rendered by the A. Cappella Choir under the direction of Cyril Stone Jackson of the school faculty, will round out the pageant.

DOCTOR GAVE HER MIXTURE TO STOP COUGHING SPELLS

Coughed So Bad People Stared—Began to Worry Family

HAWKED AND SPIT UP PHLEGM EACH MORNING

"A person with a bad cough is a fool not to see their doctor right away," declares Mrs. D. R. Shedwell. "I coughed in church, in the office where I work and at the movies so bad people would stare at me. Mornings I was a nuisance around the house, coughing up phlegm and mucus. At night I breathed through my mouth and mornings my mouth was dry and tasted awful.

SAW HER DOCTOR

"One old doctor met me on the street and noticed I coughed every minute or so. I told him the cough medicine did no good and I couldn't lose real lively sell. He handed me a prescription the name 'Linexine' and told me it was a nice-tasting flax-red mixture with Creosilpius, etc., far better than Cod Liver Oil and a lot cheaper, too.

WONDERFUL RESULTS

"Only the biggest downtown scares had Linexine but it's worth going miles to get. By noon time my cough was vanished almost like magic. Now then a dozen friends who were wheezing and coughing as I was, have tried it and even the kids in the neighborhood like to take it when they get a cough or cold. It builds you up, too."

A cough is a nasty, annoying thing to have and dangerous, too, this time of year. A 50c or $1.00 bottle at home does the work. Well stocked druggists have Linexine made, or mail coin direct to Kaye Chemical Co., or send dollar bill with name and address to Kaye Chemical Co., Brentwood, Md., for large bottle postage free to your door.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Willowdean French stood looking out of the window in Derry's office. Her poise was languid. Her eyes, a little heavy, a little dimmed of their characteristic brilliance and all the more beautiful for that, brooded on a spell in which she was yet bound, as a waking sleeper still mover half in, half out of the charmed dream. If only, thought Derry, sitting at her desk and contemplating her friend's absent face, the dream might last! The actress, without turning, said abruptly:

"Want a job, Derry?"

"Get all the job I can handle thank you." She eyed the papers neatly docketed before her.

"You're welcome to mine if you want it."

"Martin might have something to say about that."

"Martin's got a serious hate on me since the party."

"Poor Marty! He depends so on you."

"Too much," returned the stage beauty gloomily. "Derry, what do you think about Marty and me? Honestly?"

"I don't think I know."

"Oh everybody knows. everybody's wrong."

"I know that, too."

"You actually sound as if you did! How?"

"From yourself." Derry was unwarily quaking, but she had been lothing to clear her conscience of that accidental eavesdropping, and here was her chance. "When you were talking to—to someone you wouldn't lie to—Blackie," she finished resolutely.

At the name Willowdean turned from the window and came over to Derry. Her eyes became narrow and intent and—brilliant. "When did you hear Blackie and me talking about Marty?"

"At the roof party."

"Not when we were sitting out in the passageway?" half-whispered the other.

"Yes."

"You listened in?"

"We didn't mean to. But there was no way—"

"How? Who's 'we'?"

"Tony Landor and I. You had us cornered."

"You heard everything we said?" Derry nodded. "Then you know about us, Blackie and me." She lifted her small, proudly poised head. "I don't care. It may make things worse. Have on to have some one to talk to. I'm not ashamed. But I'm sorry for Marty."

"You don't want me to tell about the being there. He thought you might hold it against him.

Oh Derrie, what's going to be the

DECISION RESERVED IN AMORAL MURDER CASE

Providence, Nov. 18.—The final decision in the case of Anthony Amoral, convicted by a jury on Dec. 22, 1924, of the murder of little 8-year old Clementine Cosmo, the most atrocious crime in the State's history, was argued before the Rhode Island Supreme Court by Ex-Asst. Atty. General Herbert A. Hurley for the State and Walter Sundlun for the defense. Decision was reserved.

Broadway Merrily Celebrates Its Tercentennary

New York, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Broadway is 300 years old and is celebrating with a three-day birthday party.

The Manhattan Island section of the famous old thoroughfare that extends from Battery Park to Albany is decorated with flags and bunting.

The ceremonies were begun with a twenty-one-gun salute and speeches at Battery Park and the releasing of 10,000 colored balloons from the roof of the new Paramount Building at Times square.

The celebration ends tomorrow night with the formal opening of the new New Paramount Theatre with 4,500 guests, including Governor Smith, Mayor Walker and Thomas A. Edison.

GEORGIA JAILS NINE LYNCHERS

Douglas, Ga., Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Nine members of a mob that removed Dave Wright, a white man, from the county jail last August 27 and lynched him have pleaded guilty to murder and drawn sentences of from four years to life imprisonment.

Thus, in less than ninety days the courts have all but closed a case that revolved around the only recorded lynching in Georgia in 1926 and imposed a life sentence for participation in mob violence for the first time in the State's history.

Major Brown, a white man broth er-in-law of the woman for whose death Wright was held, was the first to plead guilty. He did so when only four jurors had been selected for the trial. Roberts Bullard, one of the defendants, turned State's evidence and was kept away from court.

Brown was leader of the mob. His sister-in-law, Mrs. Zelpha Hollins, was slain in the kitchen of her home early in August while preparing dinner. Wright, a boarder in the home, was arrested for the crime.

N. E. Industry Must Answer Retailers' Demands

FILENE IN REPORT ON SURVEY

Cotton Dress Makers Especially Cautioned at Meeting in Hartford

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 18.—Stimulation of New England industries requires closer attention of manufacturers to the needs and demands of the retail markets.

This, in brief, is the report of the research committee of the New England Council which, after a year's survey, delivered its findings today to 1,500 civic and business men and women who gathered for the first annual conference of the council.

The report of the survey, probably the first attempt ever made in the United States to stimulate the industries of a region by ascertaining the attitude of retail merchants, was made by A. Lincoln Filene of Boston, chairman of the research committee.

New England cotton dress goods manufacturers are sadly out of touch with the demands of the retail markets, the report declared, adding that they fail to sense the change in style and fashion sufficiently to alter their produce and methods.

Improvement in selling methods is needed in the shoe industry, it was stated, but the New England shoe industry has held its own with United States production since the beginning of 1924. New England is now making one-third of the shoes produced in the United States.

In the knit goods field, New England was described as increasing its number of plants faster than "the dreaded South," but manufacturers were said to be overlooking certain features of the public demand, notably the demand for silk and rayon underwear.

The seventy-two council members were guests today of the Hartford Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon. Following this they went to the auditorium of the Bread Street High School for the opening of the conference.

3 WOMEN MAY SHARE FORTUNE

Part of the $3,000,000 estate left by James Flood, California "Forty Niner," who was known as the "Bonanza King," may go to three Medford women.

Flood has been dead twenty-six years. At the time of his death there was no claimant to his fortune, but several have recently appeared. The Medford women who may share in the fortune are Mrs. Mary Flood Rowe, 78; Miss Ellen Flood, 74, and Mrs. Catherine McLennan, daughter of Mrs. Rowe. They reside at No. 61 Monmouth avenue, Medford.

According to Mrs. McLennan, Peter Flood came from Ireland to Prince Edward Island many years ago and married. Among the grandchildren of the first marriage were Mrs. Rowe and Miss Flood.

When gold was found in California, "Jim" Flood was among the first to go West. When he died in 1900 representatives went to the island seeking his kin. They found some half cousins but these put in no claim, believing closer relatives were living.

The claim of the Medford women followed reading of a newspaper clipping that a Mrs. Gavin had come forward as the only living relative. "We've not laid claim to it as she has," said Mrs. McLennan. They have written for information as to who has charge of the estate.

NO SIGN OF LIFE FROM SIX BURIED IN MINE

Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 18 (A.P.)—No signs of life had been discovered early today in the flooded workings of the Tomhicken Mine, where six workmen were entombed behind a rush of water Tuesday afternoon and nearly all hope of finding any of the men alive was abandoned.

Rescue work went ahead with renewed vigor, fresh forces sent to the scene from many parts of the anthracite region filling the gaps made by tired-out relays. Preparations were made today to place three emergency pumps into the mouth of the mine as soon as the debris was cleared away.

RESCUES BABY OVERLOOKED IN STABBING

Little nine-month-old Stella Chalowski of 20 Willard street, isn't able to say so right out, but she wishes the police would be a bit more careful when arresting mothers, sending stabbed fathers to hospitals—and locking up houses in which nine-month-old girls are innocently sleeping.

Little Stella is safe now in the home of her godmother, following the stabbing of her father, Stanley Chalowski, thirty-two, by her mother during a quarrel at the supper table over Stanley's sister-in-law Stanley is in the Relief Hospital with stab wounds in the breast and about the head, which is yours bride of eighteen months is under arrest, charged with assault with intent to kill.

Everyone was taken care in the Chalowski flat at No. 19 Barton street by the police except the baby girl, who was left in her crib by the police when they locked up the flat.

RESCUED BY GODMOTHER.

It it had not been for Mrs. Mary Ryg of 20 Willard street, a short distance away, little Stella might yet be waiting in the cold for somebody. Mrs. Ryg, the baby's godmother, heard the news several hours after the stabbing and her first thought was for the baby. No one in the vicinity of the Chalowski home had seen it.

Frantically Mrs. Ryg tried to find the policeman on the beat and finding in this she raced to the hospital, but was unable to see the father. Back to the house she went again and broke in the door herself.

HUNGRY AND COLD.

The baby, cold and hungry in the dark flat, was crying its heart out when the godmother took it home, where she bathed and fed it. She will keep Stella for the present.

The stabbing, according to police, occurred during a quarrel that started when Chalowski objected to the presence in their home as boarder of his wife's sister. The young wife picked up a bread knife, police say. Chalowski bared his breast, shouting: "Strike. You dare not do it." Mrs. Chalowski plunged the knife into his chest, it is alleged. Chalowski staggered and fell.

Neighbors called the police.

DOCTOR, LONG HOUNDED BY MYSTERY FOES, IS SLAIN

Steubenville, O., Nov. 18 (I.N.S.)—Hounded and driven from one city to another for years by enemies who have not been identified, Dr. J. L. Delphino, fifty-one, fell a victim to their bullets on a lonely road here today. The physician's body was found, slumped to the floor of his automobile, riddled with bullets from an automatic pistol at Bates Bridge, across the river from here. Dr. Delphino had admitted to friends that he had fled from one town to another in the hope of evading enemies, but did not explain the circumstances. He came here a year ago.

Robert W. Day Ill

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Robert W. Day, president of the United Electric Light Company and the Indian Orchard Company, and vice-president of the Springfield National Bank, is critically ill in a local hospital with intestinal obstruction.

LONG FIGHT IN SIGHT FOR KING BEN PURNELL

Benton Harbor, Mich., Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Extended litigation reaching into years, appeared possible here today, in the case of Benjamin Purnell, deposed "King" of the House of David.

Attorneys for the aged leader of the strange cult, who was captured in a surprise raid, declared their defense of Purnell will be carried to the highest courts.

H. T. Dewhirst, former California Superior Court judge now a member of the colony, and W. J. Barnard of Paw Paw, chief counsel for "King Ben" declare the latter went into seclusion four years ago because he could not secure a fair trial.

BELIEF IN CELIBACY.

A prediction was made in 1903 Dewhirst says, that "our leader would be falsely accused by women.

"The House of David does not believe," he said, "that members cannot die, but does teach that if the tares are removed from the blood everlasting life will result. There can never be another leader of the House of David. The King is the seventh messenger of the Israelites and no one can replace him."

Dewhirst declared that the seventh messenger insists upon celibacy among the members. The cult is composed of 1,200 adults, he said.

ON $120,000 BAIL.

The "King" is now resting among his people, following his release on bail required of $120,000 on charges preferred by two former girl members of the colony secured his release when signed by eight local business men.

Besides criminal charges, Purnell faces action by the State which seeks to behead the colony.

Dewhirst and Barnard charge that state police rifled the house raided in the capture of the leader. They declare watches, pictures and other articles are missing.

The university's band, orchestra, glee and banjo clubs will provide music. Various societies will present rifle, wrestling and boxing exhibitions. A six be staged. Paul R. BODY OF BABY GIRL IS FOUND IN FIELD

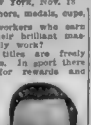
Why Not Honors, Rewards For Champion Workmen?

BY B. C. FORBES

New York, Nov. 18.

WHY NOT honors, medals, cups, titles for workmen who are distinguished by their brilliant mastery of their daily work?

Trophies and titles are freely awarded to others. In sport there is competition for rewards and titles all the way from high school teams to national champions. In business there are titles galore for those above the rank of "work man." There are presidents, chairmen, vice-presidents, general managers, superintendents galore. The banking world bristles with titles. Education bestows all kinds of titles, from president, dean, professor, down. The Catholic Church, Episcopal Church, and some other denominations are also generous in bestowing titles. And so is it in almost every walk of life.



B. C. Forbes

WHO WILL deny that the skilled artisan, the craftsman who daily exhibits skill amounting to genius is not as worthy of a suitable title as any man in any field any profession?

Why should the world withhold recognition from the greatest masters in the world of toil and craftsmanship?

Workers are exactly like other human beings in that they prize well-earned tokens of appreciation. Who have you not seen common laborers proudly wearing buttons signifying that they have served their concern ten or fifteen or twenty years? Even as modest a medal as that is cherished.

HAPPILY, some progress is being made along the lines urged. Here is an item from the latest newspapers

"Twenty-one workmen received engraved certificates of honor yesterday for superior craftsmanship on the new Pan American Building in Times Square. The certificates, together with gold buttons, were gifts of the New York Building Congress, which had awarded 177 similar honors certificates to workers on other new structures.

"Wearing their paint-spotted overalls and plasterers' caps, the chosen twenty-one stood in a glittering setting as they received their awards and thereby became honorary members of the New York Building Congress."

PHILADELPHIA has also shown other cities an admirable example. The Philadelphia Building Congress annually awards certificates of craftsmanship in the presence of all others in the building industry to workers "engaged in the crafts, who have shown especial skill in discovering the artistry of handicraft possibilities in their particular field of work, such as designing, laying out, moulding, carving, wrought work, and have given visible evidences of individuality." Certificates and a purse are awarded to "machanics, artisans, skilled workers, etc., who, in any building craft have shown skill, ability, efficiency willingness and the desire to improve their own knowledge and technique as well as that of their workers, helpers or apprentices."

NOT LONG ago Bethlehem Steel presented medals to its champion coal shovellers. I often ride in Erie trains drawn by engines bearing the name of Dennis O'Brien or Otto Miller. And some other widely known railroads, pounding an understanding of human nature are pioneering in this richly potential field of distinction and rewards for conspicuously meritorious work or service.

SURELY, champion workers are as worthy of honor as champion ball players or golfers or tennis players or swimmers or runners or polo vaulters.

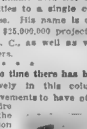
HARVARD MAN BIG UTILITY LEADER

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

S. M. Williams, Jr., president of the Midwest Gas Co., has developed into one of the greatest public utility project leaders of the country, it was told, since he was graduated from Harvard with the class of 1894. "Midwest" is a natural gas proper

The success of natural gas companies has been astounding. Of 8141 600 600 natural gas bonds issued in this country, $2,000,000 have been retired out of earnings, latest statistics furnished me indicate.

President Williams does not confine his activities to a single company, of course. His name is connected with a $25,000,000 project at Port Royal, S. C., as well as with numerous others.



From time to time there has been noted exclusively in this column the news of movements to have other railroads acquire control of the Eastern Division of the Boston & Maine.

Chester A. Jordan

Latter A. Jordan, president of the Portland, Me., Chamber of Commerce, that the Maine Central acquire the old Eastern Division from Portland to Portsmouth has been noted here. The proposed move is at last taking definite form under President Jordan's direction.

Maine furnishes its quota of big leaders in business and finance There is, for example, Frederick P. Small, president of American Express, who was a stenographer back in 1896. A Wall Street writer says of another Pine Tree Stater: A Yankee out of Maine whose forebears upheld the American flag on the seven seas in the old clipper days is Edward Allen Pierce, the partner in the Pierce-Swaffield firm who actually runs the big commission house. He is not in the limelight, in fact is modesty itself, but undoubtedly he has one of the keenest jobs in the Street today. He has developed the wire service of this firm until it embraces 35,000 miles of private leased wire over one of the country and Canada, including a wire service to San Francisco and one to Montreal via Toronto, with another from Montreal to Vancouver.

Mr. Pierce, who looks to be 46 but is around 50, is a worker among workers and his "mountain-Gawa" may employes not only look up to him but have a distinct affection for him. He has been with the firm for a quarter of a century, working through every department of the business. His thoroughness is proverbial. For instance, one of his tests is machinery and he is able to take an automobile to pieces and put it together again with ease. A little story about Pierce came to one of the members said: "I knew nothing about the affairs of the company and the man rose to his new knew less. There was only one member of the committee who knew all about it and that was Mr. Pierce—in fact, he was the committee."

President Matt B. Jones of New England Telephone refuses the offer of Motel Electric Investors to have the Statler company itself install and donate the interior wiring, if the Statler company will agree to permit the Motel people are fighting to have workers of the electrical union install the wires. The telephone company opposes this on the ground it has an agreement with its own workers by which they are to install all interior wiring. Following a meeting E. M. Statler told him if the telephone men were allowed to go ahead there would be a strike on the building.

State Department of Public Utilities is having a further hearing on the situation today. What it can do is problematical. In the meantimes, with this important Boston construction pressed, it ought to be possible for all the affected parties to get together and effect some kind of compromise. It is common to lock garage doors after the auto has been stolen. Because it is no unbiased person's special business to seek a compromise now is no reason why a dilatory policy should be pursued by officials of the Chamber of Commerce, if tendered through President Andrew J. Peters, an ex-mayor of Boston, might prove acceptable to all in bringing about an arbitration bond.

Roy A. Hovey, commissioner of banks, tells Public Service Co. of New Hampshire first and refunding 5 per cent. bonds of 1926 have been added to the Massachusetts list of legal investments for savings banks.

Wall Street Gossip

LACLEDE Gas Light Co. declared an extra dividend of 2 per cent. regular of 2 per cent. on common and regular semi-annual of 3½ per cent. on preferred, all payable December 15.

BARNSDALL Corporation earned $4.19 on combined Class A and Class B shares in nine months ended Sept. 30 and $1.41 a share in third quarter.

THE 1926 earnings of Fairbanks, Morse & Co. will be fully as large as, if not larger than, last year when $6.76 a share was earned, say officials.

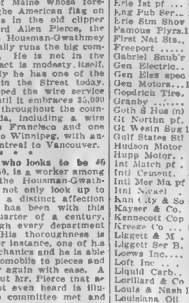
Stock Analysis



Radio corporation of America, organized in 1919, enjoys a practical monopoly in the field of international radio communication between this country and foreign nations, operates an extensive ship and shore service for the shipping industry and owns a large number of basic patents in the radio industry some of which are leased to manufacturers on a royalty basis.

The company engages in broadcasting and only recently formed a subsidiary corporation to be known as the National Broadcasting Company.

Sales of radio apparatus and equipment in 1925 amounted to $46,251,786, as compared with gross earnings of $50,747,202, recorded in 1924. Last year's net income was equal to only $2.38 per share, as compared with earnings of $4.98 per share in 1924, this being partially the result of trade price adjustments during 1925.

The present year, however, has been considerable improvement, gross business during the first nine months totaling $36,941,743 as compared with gross income of $27,165,-761 in the corresponding period of 1925.

Furthermore, since the last quarter of the year is normally the most active in the radio industry, the Radio Corporation's gross income for the full 12 months of 1926 is likely to top the record gross return of 1924 by perhaps 10 million dollars.

At the end of last year the company's financial condition was in good shape, in comparison with current assets which were more than three times as great as current liabilities, while there were no bank loans and no funded debts outstanding.

Gamewell Company

Gamewell Co. declared regular quarterly dividend on common stock of $1.25 per share, payable Dec. 15.

Argus Eyes are Needed

As we recall the story of Argus, this fabled monster was supposed to have 100 eyes, only two of which slept at a time, Argus was a favorite name for a watch dog among the people of the fable's day.

New England, in its numerous public spirited bodies, has far more than the eyes of Argus looking over her welfare, and they are needed.

This is a reminder of the appearance of Augustus P. Loring before the Massachusetts Commission of Public Utilities. Mr. Loring opposes the action of Chairman Homer Loring of the Boston & Maine by asking that four trains be restored to famous Prides Crossing, once the Summer home of Henry C. Frick, the late steel magnate, and other notables.

Mr. Loring and other petitioners declare Prides is slipping because of train service curtailments.

Certainly New England must have ample train service, however it is to be obtained, if other localities are not to find themselves in the position pictured and protested at Prides,

HARVARD'S FIRST TEAM STILL A MYSTERY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

SPEED, ACCURACY, INTEGRITY — NEWS THE DAY IT HAPPENS

BOSTON, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1926

JAKE STAFFORD TO CALL SIGNALS

REMINISCENCES of the days when Percy Haughton, famous strategist, led the Crimson horde, were again enacted at Harvard. Coach Arnold Horween, the new Crimson mentor, despite his promise to name his starting eleven at the mass meeting, has left Harvard's football devotees in the dark in regard to the eleven Crimson players who will rush on the Yale gridiron Saturday

Three thousand students gathered at the mass meeting to view the eleven starters, but were taken asunder by the extra nine members on the platform. From this twenty, Horween said would be chosen the starting team. But this leaves the situation still in oblivion in regard to the ends, guards and backs.

The only reliable guess as to the starting players, is to stand by the team that has been practicing in the Stadium this week.

Horween will not state definitely the team he has in mind. There is no question but what many changes will be made.

The new lineup appears logical in all but two positions. The present seven has Sid Rudman and Bob Meadows at the ends; Charley Pratt and Captain Chem Coady at tackle, Bydie Bilgour and Don Simonds at guard; Ernie Gainache at center and Jake Stafford directing a backfield of Sayles, French and Guarnaccia.

The berths held by Rudman and French are the two positions which the Crimson mentors have been in doubt about all week. Rudman will have a hard job on his hands playing his first game against such a strong team as Yale. Coach "Chick" Carney has confidence in the Cambridge boy and has given him preference over Saltonstall and Strong.

The left halfback berth, at present held by French, is uncertain. Eben Clark, a real round gainer, has shown the coaches that he is there and therefore has been a constant alternate with French.

THREE VETS ON BENCH.

The latter has the call for the job right now but how long he will retain it is really a matter of time.

Three varsity players, Al Miller, Jack Robinson and Carl Lindner, have been benched and will only enter the fray in the role of substitutes.

Guarnaccia, the Crimson triple threat, has not wholly regained his strength, but the coaches will start him at any cost. His interference power is needed and his ability to heave the forward pass cannot be dispensed with.

The team has a new fighting frame of mind. They know that they can defeat Yale. The benching of several players and the utter secrecy of the starting team has left the entire squad ready to tear apart the Bulldog.

They are fighting hard and Horween intends to keep up this feeling until the team marches on the Bowl gridiron.

The finale of one of the most enthusiastic celebrations ever to be shown by a Harvard undergraduate body will take place this afternoon when the entire student body forms at the Widener Memorial Library and marches behind the Harvard band to the gridiron.

GAME FOR STUDENTS.

Horween has planned a novice game with a kickoff and running plays for the benefit of the students. Following the practice the undergraduates will enact their usual smoke-dance on the gridiron and the celebration will be terminated with a parade back to Harvard Square.

The final workout will consist of an entirely offensive drill. The Yale plays have been given a thorough scrutinization all week and the Crimson defence appears sound. Kicking and passing will precede the offensive drill before the arrival of the students.

The players will be at their liberty tonight, the majority retiring to their rooms for a long sleep before they repair to the Varsity club for breakfast tomorrow morning.

The Crimson special will pull out of the Back Bay station tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and will arrive at New Haven at approximately two o'clock.

H.-Y. Followers Charter 92 'Specials'

TRADITION surely rules the football world.

Harvard and Yale each have suffered more than their share of football reverses this year and both fell before Princeton in the "Big Three" competition.

This poor showing, however, has had no effect on the attractiveness of their annual clash, which takes place in the Yale Bowl tomorrow.

Ninety-two special trains have been chartered to carry a portion of the army of gaily attired spectators who will attend the Crimson-Blue classic. Fifty-one of them leave from Boston and New York.

It was also announced at the office of the Harvard A. A. that $23,000 had been returned to applicants for Harvard tickets because of lack of pasteboards.

HARVARD'S BEST BET ON FIRST DEFENSE

Charlie Pratt is one of the best tackles to play on a Crimson line. His brilliant showing in the Princeton game has made him a logical candidate for next year's captaincy.

Bogash in Battle With Robertson

Lou Bogash, rugged middleweight, and Homer Robertson, former amateur champion, will clash in a ten-round bout t the Crescent rink at Lowell tonight.

The rival punchers are in the best of condition. Bogash is shooting for a return bout with Tiger Flowers, world a middleweight champion, and figures on using Robertson as a stepping stone to reaching his objective.

Robertson is also eager to reach the pugilistic heights and will set a fast pace for Bogash.

BROWN'S IRON MEN REST UP FOR N. H. S.

Providence, Nov. 18.—Brown second team walloped the Pollywog eleven, which used New Hampshire plays, by a score of 12 to 0. Trefethen scored one touchdown with a 3-yard plunge after Steve Crilly had made two long runs to put the ball in scoring position. The second score was made by Campbell who reeled off 30 yards on an end run.

This scrimmage was probably the last of the season as the program for the remainder of the campaign calls only for dummy scrimmages and signal drills to keep the squad in shape for the Colgate battle.

Coach McLaughry refused to allow his regulars to take a chance in this afternoon's scrimmage, fearing injuries with the end of the season in view. The "iron eleven" went through a long signal drill and Mishel and Randall were given a kicking drill.

Dummy scrimmages for both first and second elevens against Coach Snell's "New Hampshire" team completed the workout. Both varsity elevens found little difficulty in stopping the attack of the Granite Staters.

Colgate plays will be used by the Scrubs against the first team tomorrow and Friday, as the coaches are working on a defense for the aerial game they expect the Maroon to employ.

Fights Last Night

Dallas, Tex.—Pal Moore, Memphis, outpointed Dandy Dick Griffin, Forth Worth, Texas (10).

Detroit — Jackie Nichols, St. Paul, knocked out Johnny Webber, Detroit (3d). Georg Gould, Toronto, beat Bill Hood, Detroit (10).

Two of Country's Best Scorers Meet Saturday

By JOHN GILLOOLY

The scoring power of two of the country's outstanding players will be tested on Saturday when Boston College meets Gettysburg at Braves Field. For when these two teams clash on one side will be Al Weston, pride of the local collegians, opposed by Charlie Spangler, greatest ball carrier in the history of the Keystone State college.

Weston is seventh leading scorer in the East while his rival, Spangler, is holding down the eighth position, only one point behind the local player.

Both athletes have two more games to go and in all probability, Saturday's spirits that will decide the important issue.

Spangler has a big advantage over our local gallopер since he is one of the surest drop-kickers in the country. In Saturday's game with Mt. St. Mary's college, which Gettysburg won 23 to 0, Spangler kicked two points after touchdown but missed a difficult third.

It might be said in passing that this kid from the Battlefield scored three touchdowns for a total of twenty points against Mt. St. Mary's.

Although Coach Bill Woods makes it clear that he isn't bringing a one-man team to Boston he is loud in his praise of his triple threat backfield man. Woods says he is the best he has ever seen, which makes it a certainty that Spangler is a star.

And when Bill was speaking of his galaxy of stars he put in a good word for Milt Wachob, stocky end of the visitors. Wachob is a senior at Gettysburg, and won a varsity berth after four years of hard plugging.

Coach Woods lost Piney Bender because of an injury, and shifted Wachob to an end position. Saturday's fray was the first attempt of Milt to cavort at a wing berth, and according to reports played the game of his life.

But Coach Woods has still another scintillating performer. This lad is Silent Al Jones, Gettysburg quarterback. Al is the idol of the little mountain town. One of the outstanding incidents of Jone's athletic career is that the sport in which he was formerly least known is the one that has now made him famous.

In high school Jones was a four letter man but starred in only baseball and basketball. As a grid star he was a good center fielder. But Woods recognized his ability and has made him one of the smartest directors of a grid machine that has ever barked signals. Eddie Plank famous Philadelphia Athletics pitcher, who died recently, had Jones under his wing and was grooming him for Connie Mack.

Boston College May Play Army in 1927

The West Point cadets will appear on the 1927 gridiron schedule of Boston College, according to present indications. The Army and B. C. will clash in one of the hot football struggles of the season at a New York ball park next season.

The clinching of the West Point date has been accomplished by a B. C. graduate board consisting of five members who have taken over the formation of the schedule for next Fall.

Thus far B. C. has succeeded in accomplishing a clash with Princeton in New York, but no further agreement has been made. It would like to bring West Point to Boston, but such a plan is impossible for a few years at least.

The clinching of the game with West Point is expected to result in an early agreement between Mr. Frank Cavanaugh and the B. C. graduate board. Reports continue to make their appearance that Columbia is still angling for the services of the Eagles' coach. This report is discounted at Newton, however, where it is considered that Cavanaugh will not listen to any appeals to make a split.

TUFTS FIRST TEAM READY FOR AGGIES

The last scrimmage of the season was held at the Tufts oval. This was in preparation for the game Saturday with Mass. Aggies, the oldest game of the season. Coach Samson lined up his team A men against "Bob" Abbott's second team.

In the line "Jumbo" Spofford, Morris Brown, Karl Soule and "Jim" Fitzgerald did remarkable work. Spofford and Brown have not only shown physical prowess, but intellectual ability as well.

Jim Fitzgerald, Tufts lanky end, is a play of the most consistent game of any of the linesmen. He has missed a minute of play all this season, that being in the first game. He has been one of the most valuable men on the squad and he will be one of those who will comprise the nucleus of next year's varsity squad.

GERMAN HEAVYWEIGHT AT ST. JOE'S SHOW

Another new crop of amateur boxing weights will make their appearance at the weekly boxing tournament of the St. Joseph's T. A. B. in Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square next Saturday Night, according to present indications.

Eddie Mack will uncover a new heavyweight who recently came here from Germany. The foreigner has made an impressive showing in training and it is predicted that he will make good from the start.

Two novice classes also are on the card for Saturday night including 112 pounds and 160 pounds. Five such classes also are on the card and these classes will include 118, 126, 135 and 147 pounds and heavyweight.

NOBLE TO PLAY ON YALE ELEVEN

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18.—Yale football players today began the two-day period of comparative rest before the Harvard game on Saturday. Head Coach Tad Jones ordered the entire squad to report to Yale Field today and tomorrow, but the work will consist merely of signal rehearsal.

Tomorrow Harvard will be given the bowl for most of the afternoon. The Yale squad will go there for its final workout after the departure of Captain Coady's players.

While Yale's halfback positions remain slightly unsettled, indications today were that Larry Noble and Al Foote would be started against the Crimson. Noble is Yale's chief backfield star, but is in no physical condition to remain in the play more than two periods.

Since his recovery from the injury which sidelined him for four weeks he has participated in two minutes of football, being driven into the Princeton game as a second possibility last Saturday. He and Bill Holabird, the pass-all pitcher, will divide the left halfback assignment in the bowl against Harvard.

The coaches made a new move two weeks ago when they shifted Foote to left halfback after using him at right halfback in the Princeton game. Foote played right halfback longer than any other back in the game this fall, but was ineffective in the West Point game and was replaced by Flaherty at the intermission of the battle.

The coaches have not decided which of the two to start against Harvard although the position is the assignment in which Foote is said to be at his best.

The coaches fully realize that, in using Al Look of Manning's Wrigley a player who was moved from the backs only two weeks ago, Yale is taking heavy chances. Look, however, with the added fighting spirit and brilliant rush line game, both on the attack and defense, has proven to have been the second best displayed in the centre rush position all the year and the coaches have virtually decided to retain him at snapback against Harvard.

Yale's most probable lineup, together with the reserves, and replacement troops which have been selected for the Harvard campaign, is as follows.

Reserves—Sanger and Crile, ends; Quarrier and Flaherty, tackles; Hickock and Wertham, guards; Harvey, center; Switz, quarterback; Holabird, Stone and Failing, backs.

Hope of late returns of Yale-Harvard football tickets today faded when the Yale management announced that an unusually heavy demand by Yale alumni who had not previously applied would make it impossible to supply pasteboards.

Strict watch will be kept to make sure that the personal use of tickets is adhered to in the Bowl Saturday. Today speculators, who had been driven off the streets of New Haven by the detective bureau, sold in cafes the small number they have secured.

YALE APPEALS FROM ATTACKS OF CRITICS

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 18.—Yale football officials feel keenly attacks from newspaper sources which were uncorked just before the Yale Princeton game.

They believe that these prevented the college from rallying behind the team and caused the public to withdraw support of it, as shown by the fact that the special train planned from New Haven for the Princeton game, was compelled to run with half the usual number of cars, and with cancellation of cars by the New Haven Union League and Quinnipiack Clubs.

Fearing that the criticism, although stilled somewhat by Yale's superb showing at Princeton, may affect the Yale Harvard game Sayre Yale coaches and Captain Bunnell today made statements of appeal and protest against the student body and the public in general heeding the knocks and criticisms.

Captain Bunnell said "Head Coach Tad Jones is a splendid example for the youth of America to follow and as a coach he is one of the best in the world. It is not fair to him and to the Yale team that statements should be published which were made before the Princeton game and I hope that the college will rally to the support of the team and that it will be given the confidence of the public."

Head Coach Jack Coles of Bowdoin said: "In all fairness to Yale, undergraduates should suppress all false rumors and idle gossip about the team. Many false statements have already been published. These have resulted in a critical attitude by newspapers toward the coaching system, which is unjustified."

Rex Root, physical director of the Roxbury Tutoring School, of Cheshire, and for three years a Yale lineman, said:

"The newspapers which have published false statements about the teams and its coaching system are to be condemned. These have hindered the coaches from getting the best results and have given the players themselves a feeling of despair. They have prevented the undergraduates rallying around the team as it might have done. The team cannot get together for the best results in the Harvard game without the support of the college body, which I believe and hope it will have. Returning Yale men feel that they have the sympathy of Harvard in trying to prevent a repetition of the ground less stories which were published following Yale's defeat by the Army. Immediately after the Yale-Harvard game [illegible] Head Coach Tad Jones and a story of a personal encounter between Phil Bunnell and Bill Ling which they insist never took place.

One of the schools of the Harvard-Princeton triple alliance was to prevent the publication of such baseless stories, and one of the deepest regrets at Yale is that, with the league now split, greater difficulty will be met in combating the influence of such articles.

OLD ELI LEADS JOHN HARVARD IN VICTORIES

Saturday's clash will be the forty-fifth gridiron encounter between Harvard and Yale. Yale has won twenty-three contests while Harvard has taken fifteen. Six games have been tied.

HIGHEST BIDDER TO GET TUNNEY

Champ Will Box for Fugazy If the Latter's Terms Are Better Than Rickard's

By DAVIS S. WALSH, I. N. S. Sports Editor.

New York, Nov. 18—Gene Tunney, slightly peeved over "certain features" in connection with Tex Rickard's promotion of the recent unpleasantness in Philadelphia, may desert the ring in favor of the "coin princes, see Humbert J. Fugazy, it was learned today.

Under Fugazy's auspices Tunney's opponent would be either Jack Sharkey, who exposed Harry Wilson Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion, and the bout, if held, will take place at the Polo Grounds during the late summer months.

Meantime, Delaney and Sharkey may meet for the right to challenge for the title. Both are bound to Fugazy, the former by preference and the latter by contract, expiring February 1.

Within the last twenty four hours Tunney and Fugazy have conferred on the matter and a second and final meeting is due on November 20. A definite proposition will be made to Tunney then and, if Rickard can't better it, Tunney will go over to the other camp.

From a lieutenant of Tunney's it was learned today that the champion's grievances against Rickard are "unimportant" and that Gene feels quite friendly toward the promoter. He, however, is NOT disposed to let friendship interfere with business and if Fugazy can show him more money with Delaney or Sharkey than Rickard can with Persson or Maloney the champion won't hesitate.

Holy Cross Shifts Wise to Halfback

Worcester, Nov. 18.—With its objective game of the season but 10 days away the Holy Cross varsity eleven, due to a complex because of injuries, is more or less at the experimental stage of the game as one frequently finds a team early in the season when the coaching staff have had but little time to consider the quality and stock of material on hand.

Today Coach O'Donnell further experimented with possible backfield combinations, the newest of which developed into Billy Wise, star quarterback. Johnny Murphy, the Auburn boy, former Classical High School quarter, called the plays and Maurice Conners was at right halfback with Ed Madden at fullback. Ted has got to do some tall developing before the Boston game. Sheldon Daly, varsity back, has a charley horse and with that ailment he is not a sure fire player and may be out at any time.

TERRIERS LOSE GLENN O'BRIEN

The Terrier chances of giving Holy Cross a good little Saturday were reduced to a minimum when Glenn O'Brien, the quarterback was severely injured in scrimmage. He received a ruptured blood vessel in his right thigh and was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

O'Brien was the leading candidate for the signal barker's berth. He was the one who chose to start the game with the Purple, for since the Dartmouth game he has been coming to the fore with rapid strides.

With O'Brien definitely out of the season, the brunt of the quarterback duties will fall on the shoulders of Harry Herbert.

This afternoon the team of 18 eligibles will take the field against the varsity. This team will be equipped with the Holy Cross plays and practice to run rough shod over the varsity. It will have in its line up several stars from last year's out fit.

FRANKING FOOTBALL TICKETS NEXT

HELL hath no fury like a ticket seeker who thinks he's getting the worst of it. The mighty minds of Congress are now turned on Army-Navy ducats, and an investigation as sensational as the Teapot Dome affair is ponderously trying to get under way. This probe, as the headline boys call it, will undoubtedly clear the ticket situation. Sometime along toward the end of the century some conclusion will be reached, and the grandchildren of the present legislators will get their Army-Navy tickets, as per schedule and not per speculators. To the ordinary mind, such a furore over a couple of $3 pasteboards smacks of the ridiculous, but the ordinary mind does not stop to consider that Congress has to do something, and that while it is worrying and orating about tickets, it cannot be getting itself into any serious bother. A Congressional investigation of the ticket situation would cost several hundred times what the speculators want for Army seats, but, of course, it would not be the Congressmen's money. Which is a more or less important consideration.

Nick Flatley

At all events, the ideas on tickets will brighten up a few pages of the Congressional Record, and that's something to be thankful for. People do not hate to read that Record, but peculiarly enough some of them do. These, we imagine, are the persons who do not go to the polls.

Congress has naturally become interested in this football game, because it has million dollar gate potentialities. The takeoff from the Chicago service game will establish new football dollar records, and some of our lawmakers are not averse to being mixed in anything that has backs of money attached.

WAILS FROM WASHINGTON INDICATE THAT THE SERVICE FOR THE SERVICE GAME WASN'T WHAT IT WAS EXPECTED TO BE.

Congress could do worse than appoint Tex Richard government football promoter.

TICKET LOOMS AS CAMPAIGN FODDER

REPRESENTATIVE HAMILTON FISH, JR., is the leading battler for the cause of more and cheaper tickets. Ham used to be captain at Harvard, so he knows a lot about football. He never had any trouble getting Harvard-Yale tickets, so he was painfully and fearfully surprised when he only drew four for the service game, after ordering six, which representatives were supposed to get. Being an old grad, he naturally started to deplore.

"I have personal knowledge," he remarked in horrified tones, "that the secretaries of two House members have gotten tickets for the game by using the names of their respective congressmen and have sold the tickets for prices ranging from $20 to $30 apiece. I guess this practice has been rather extensive. A great many more secretaries have done the same thing. It should not be permitted."

This merely goes to show that secretaries are smart young men, who do not allow the moss to grow on their O'Sullivans. Christmas is coming, and campaign expenses have been heavy, so there isn't too much loose money rattling around the Capitol.

If Congress takes over that football game, the ticket will replace the checkbook in future campaigns. One modest Congressman applied for only 1,743 of them. He received four, so if he is beaten by 1,739 votes in the next election he will know where to place the blame.

CHILDISH in the extreme, the way the solemn A. A. U. officials refuse to put Arthur Duffey's dash record on the books. The boys are experts in the art of not making friends.

REPLYING TO YOURS OF RECENT—

W. O. SEARS of Worcester takes exception to what Sheffield '16 had to say about Yale the other day. Which is not surprising. Concluding a snappy epistle, he submits the following: "No wonder he's off the "big" teams. If I had picked as many losers as he has this year, I'd go to the races and try to pick the winners by punching holes in the program."

In reply to L. de Christoforo: Jack Kearns did say that there was Jewish blood in Jack Dempsey. Also, all members of the Haskell team are Indians, though not all are full blooded.

LOOKING at the schoolboy sport mirror on Turkey Day it would be unwise to pass up the Boston High School double bill at Braves Field. The English-Latin historical conflict always proves a great drawing card. Judge Fuchs' wigwam is spacious enough to seat a huge gathering.

LABRIOLA AND McGUIRE ON MAT TONIGHT

Ned McGuire, Irish heavyweight wrestler, is in fine fettle for his finish match with Leone Labriola at the Grand Opera House tonight. More than that he is confident of victory.

McGuire believes the referee made a mistake when he gave Labriola their last match.

"I defeated Labriola in that match fairly and squarely," said Ned. "Tonight I shall defeat him again. Then I want a match with Pat McGill. He wants to see who is the real Irish champion and so do I. Nothing will please me better than a match with him. First, however, I must defeat Labriola and although I know him to be a tough wrestler, I believe my half nelson and inside crotch will turn the trick."

It looks like an even match to most of the fans.

Pat McGill will again be seen in action, meeting Ivan Ludlow, Russian sensational wrestler, in another bout to a positive finish. Pat has made a great impression here and fans would welcome a contest between him and Labriola. This would give them a real line on his true ability.

Ludlow has a lot of European tricks, and his flying holds are especially effective and spectacular. His plans with some of these to upset the youthful Irish lad. McGill banks on his famous aeroplane whirl to win him the contest.

Joao Dominero, Portuguese grappler, making a bid for championship honors, will receive a real test when he meets Frank Dutcher in a one fall finish match. Joao is of the fiery type, and fans have asked to see him in action again.

Leon Burbank, Cliftondale arbiter, will referee all the bouts.

Finnegan Wants to Defend Title Here

By JACK CONWAY

HONEYBOY FINNEGAN, world's featherweight champion, is prepared to defend his title in a Boston ring against the victor of the proposed tussle between Benny Bass of Philadelphia and Red Chapman, Dorchester featherweight, which is planned as a Madison Square Garden feature, according to a statement made today by Dan Carroll.

"Finnegan won his title in Boston by eliminating Chapman and then defeating Chick Suggs," said Carroll, "and we think that Boston is the proper spot for the title to be defended. I think the crowd at the Finnegan-Suggs bout proved that this city is large enough to stage a bout of a championship event outside of possibly the heavyweight division.

"Finnegan will be back fighting late in December or early in January. Dick suffered no ill effects from making 126 pounds for Suggs and will be prepared to make this notch every time he defends his champion ship."

Jack Conway

With Finnegan champion, the featherweight class has taken on new life. Besides the Bass Chapman bout, a Fuller-Drew tussle is being discussed. They are two of the younger featherweights. Fuller has put up some sparkling battles in local rings, while Drew has beaten Chapman and other leading featherweights.

CARROLL'S declaration that Finnegan will make 126 pounds every time he defends his title completely routs those fans who claim that Honeyboy will fight as a junior lightweight in future. Before the Finnegan-Suggs bout was signed up, few persons, other than Honeyboy and Carroll, figured the Dorchester youth could reduce to 126 pounds and still be strong enough to fight.

There was reason for this opinion on the part of the fans as Finnegan usually fought at between 128 and 130 pounds. Honeyboy not only came down to 126 pounds for the Suggs bout, but was stronger than the negro who carried his full strength into the ring.

It was not an easy task for Finnegan to map out a course of training that would bring him down to 126 pounds without impairing his health, but now that he has found the formula for losing the extra pounds he carries around he should be able to make 126 pounds two or three times a year.

FINNEGAN originally started training for the Suggs bout in Boston. He found it impossible to take off weight as quickly as he wished and when an injured eye stepped into the picture he grasped at this as an excuse for asking for a postponement.

Jack Carroll then sent Finnegan to Wamesit to train. He did all of his training, other than boxing, at Martin Flaherty's health farm, while he boxed each afternoon in Lowell.

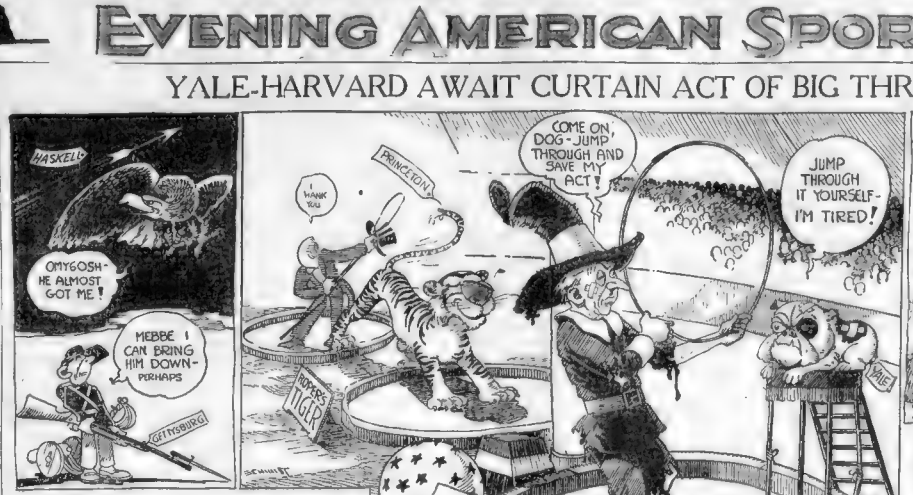
YALE-HARVARD AWAIT CURTAIN ACT OF BIG THREE



AMATEUR ATHLETIC WARLOOMS

A. A. U. Gains the Control of Olympic Organization; Rival Governing Groups Enraged

Washington, Nov. 18 (A.P.)—An open break between rival national sports governing groups existed today, the culmination of a long period of strife, as an aftermath to the launching of the 1928 American Olympic organization.

The latest clash has left the Amateur Athletic Union more dominant than ever and in complete control of the plans for this country's participation in the Olympic Games at Amsterdam, Holland, two years hence.

"LOVE SPATS."

The underlying basis of the whole dispute involves opposition to the A. A. U. exercising exclusive track and field competition. This has been a "sore spot" between the rival groups for a number of years. Typical of it was the Paddock case prior to the 1924 Olympics, when the California sprinter was suspended by the A. A. U. for competing in Paris without its sanction, although he had N. C. A. A. permission.

General Pierce stressed this issue in explaining the withdrawal of himself, Colonel Henry Breckinridge, president of the N. A. A. F., and others from the Olympic organization. He also attacked the A. A. U.'s course in gaining voting control of the Olympic Association and charged that by doing away with the two-thirds rule it permitted "91 per cent. of the delegates to dictate to the other 49 per cent., although the minority represented 90 per cent of the athletics of the nation," and the "91" A. A. U. which represents approximately 500,000 undergraduates."

The quadrennial meeting of the American Olympic Association, a perpetual body which merely sets in motion every four years the actual working machinery, furnished the setting for this climax to an athletic conflict that has found the A. A. U. arrayed for years against a group headed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association and more recently including the National Amateur Athletic Federation and the Y. M. C. A.

A. A. U. TRIUMPHS.

It ended in a sweeping triumph for the A. A. U. forces who put into office their entire ticket, headed by William C. Prout of Boston, as successor to Col. Robert M. Thompson in the presidency of both the Olympic Association and newly formed Olympic Committee.

There were all the elements of a pitched battle in the sessions of delegates of some two score athletic organizations.

Thrust back in the opening skirmishes, the A. A. U. gathered such strength as the meeting progressed through a mass of legislative matters that opposing forces led by Brigadier-General Palmer E. Pierce of New York, president of the National Collegiate A. A., withdrew altogether from participation in the session and resigned from all committee memberships tendered them.

This is the first time such a pronounced split has marked the differences between these groups.

Red Grange Gives Helpful Hints to Future Grid Stars

By HAROLD E. (RED) GRANGE

World's Most Famous Football Player

Written Expressly for Universal Service

Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service

New York, Nov. 17.—One of the common mistakes of football is to take too much for granted, and I believe that the rule applies even more to football because of the great number of rules in the gridiron game. I know of one instance where a Conference championship was affected through one team assuming too much for granted.

With this idea in mind I have two suggestions to offer to football players. Never stop running with the ball until somebody stops you, even though you hear the umpire's horn blowing, indicating that a some rule has been violated. Never let an opposing player, who carries the ball, move in the direction of your own goal even though you think a whistle has blown, that some violation of rule nullifies his advance.

Red Grange

The umpire is supposed to blow his horn whenever he detects any violation of the rule, but it sometimes happens that the defending side is at fault. Under such conditions the team carrying the ball has a choice of taking either the gain or the penalty. Naturally a team will decline the penalty if the runner has traveled far with the ball.

I have known of runners stopping at the sound of the horn, believing that play is halted. If they had kept on running they might go to a touchdown and the score would count, too, if the defending side was at fault.

That is why I say that the ball carrier should never stop until somebody brings him down, or at least checks his advance.

Keep on running and find out afterwards what it is all about. There is no penalty for crossing the goal line with a ball even if your own team committed the foul.

A particular instance of the ill effects of taking too much for granted will serve to emphasize my point about never letting an opponent move toward your goal line with the ball. Bring him down and find out afterwards whether or not he had any right to be moving that way.

In the Wisconsin-Michigan game of 1923 the Badgers decided that a down had been completed, allowed a Michigan player to race toward their own goal and the result was a touchdown which caused the defeat of Wisconsin and kept Illinois from a clear title to the conference championship. By the victory Michigan gained a tie with Zuppke's team.

The play happened at midfield, with Rockwell of Michigan carrying the ball. The Badgers took for granted that Rockwell had been officially downed, but it developed later that the referee had not blown his whistle on the play.

Rockwell, free, started toward the Wisconsin goal line and the Badgers paid little or no attention to him. They found out too late that the whistle had not been blown. But there was no making up for that touchdown.

So I say that a player should never let an opponent run. Tackle him first and think afterwards, instead of thinking first that he has no right to be running. Conversely a player should always believe that he himself has every right in the world to keep on moving until an opponent halts him. Let the horns blow but concede nothing until forced to stop.

A player will sometimes see an opponent step over the line before the ball is snapped, and, taking for granted that this offside play prevents any gain, he will make no effort to halt it.

He should charge into the play and find out later if the official detected the offside work. Perhaps it stopped him, and again a player pays the penalty of assuming too much. This again bears out what I have said about stopping the player moving toward your own goal line regardless of any other consideration.

And there are various other ways of taking too much for granted. It pays in football to do a lot of the thinking after a play has been stopped instead of trying to figure out everything in advance.

Troubles Keep the Stars of Gridiron From Limelight

Trouble has loomed on and off the gridiron for many star players this season. Quarterback Baysinger resigned from the Syracuse squad after attempting to punch Referee Schwartz during the rough Army game of October. Harold Gothran, Lafayette's star tackle and a likely All-American prospect, has been dropped from the team for breach of training rules. Two Nebraska gridders, Roy Mandery, end, and "Jug" Brown, crack halfback, were arrested recently in a raid on student gamblers in Lincoln.

FRANCIS GILLIGAN WILL LEAD EXETER IN 1927

Exeter, N. H., Nov. 18.—Francis Gilligan of Newtonville, halfback on the Exeter eleven, was today elected captain for the 1927 eleven by players who took part in the Andover game. Gilligan has played two years on the eleven and is preparing for Harvard.

COACHES LAUD EFFORTS OF HORWEEN

Harvard rejoiced this morning. It had its prize package. In the personage of Arnold Horween strongly within its ranks. Horween will be at the helm of the Crimson eleven again next year, and the Horween system will start on its second lap.

The most popular man among the Harvard undergraduates could not have picked a more dramatic scene to announce his decision to accept the position of head coach for another year. Before a crowd of 3000 rejoicing and boisterous students, Horween broke the news.

Shortly before the mass meeting in scrip encircled the head man for and asked if he had considered the contract handed to him after the Dartmouth victory. "Never had thought of it," answered Horween. Two minutes afterwards he broke the news to the students.

He has preferred that his contract should only run for a one-year term, although the original terms called for his services for three years. He will pick his assistants and the probable outlook is that the entire football staffs will be retained.

Horween has accumulated a rare coliers interest in all who have come in contact with him. Players, students, officials, professors and scribes are behind him to a man.

Coach Chick Carney, All-American end from Illinois and present end coach predicted a bright future for Horween. "Give Arnie Horween another year of experience and you will see the greatest head coach that ever existed," said Carney to the students.

"In my football experience throughout the West I have come in contact with the leading coaches of this great game of football. But Horween is one of the greatest coaches with whom I have ever had any dealings with."

Coach Jim Brader summed up his present feelings as follows: "I hate to leave such a great gang of men as these players. There never was be an opponent, a head coach as they have no / directing them."

Captain Clem Condy referred to Horween's return as the best bit of news that has come to Cambridge this year. He could only forsee greater news on next Saturday when his team is the winner over Yale.

NORTHEASTERN SEEKS FOOTBALL TEAM IN 1927

As the result of petitions from students who want football adopted as a varsity sport at Northeastern University, the faculty committee on athletics will investigate to see if the football team is feasible at Northeastern, where the co-operative plan is in practice.

Northeastern has over 1,500 students in the schools of engineering and business administration who would be eligible to play football, and the Freshman-Sophomore game this Fall showed that there is good material for an eleven.

LUQUE DENIES REPORT THAT HE WILL RETIRE

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 18.—Adolfo Luque, Cuban pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds and most famous of the island players in major league baseball, empatically denies a rumor that he is about to retire from the diamond to attend to his business interests. Steve league rumors should be taken "with a little grain of salt and sometimes with a big lump of it," the Cuban declares.

DILBOY POST RING TOURNEY TONIGHT

Dilboy Post reports it has received the largest entry list of the season for its open amateur boxing show at K. of C. hall, Somerville, tonight. Interest centers on the 160-pound class and heavyweight ring. A flock of promising boys have entered both of these divisions.

Sailor Schaffe's departure on the Florida will cause many new boys to show in the 160-pound group. With Schaffe out of it, the lower heavyweights tend to even.

The final 12 bouts of eight rounds at tonight's show are also wanted. The winners at tonight's show will receive consideration for the 1928 national tournament to be held by the State Department, Y. M. C. A., on December 8, with teams from Pittsburgh, Canada and Boston competing.

Y. M. C. A. WALKEAS PLAN THANKSGIVING DAY HIKE

Hiking is still popular at the Y. M. C. A., and one of the features of the program at the Huntington avenue branch Thanksgiving Day will be a hike from that point to the South Boston aquarium. The start will be made from the Y. M. C. A. at 9 o'clock and will cover a route of eight miles. Robert Muir, director of the Y. M. C. A. gymnatorium, will have charge.

WALKER'S SOCK AGAINST SKILL OF MALONE

It will be another case of a terrific puncher against a master boxer when Mickey Walker, former welterweight champion and a real knock-out collides with the skilful Jock Malone in the feature ten round bout at a Commercial A. C. show at Mechanics Building on next Monday night.

Ray Lodge of South L, who has looked Al Mello, Leslie Sheelin and many good welterweight in the country will clash with Pete August, Bridgeport, Conn., who recently beat Sammy Baker in one of the big upsets of the season.

In another six rounder, Frankie Merrin, South Boston's dangerous puncher will clash with Joe Austin, lightweight champion of Rhode Island. Eddie Adonis, Back Bay, former amateur champion, and Sarge Penna of Somerville, two four round bouts between amateur tory performers will open the show.

'CASEY'S' TRACK MEET SLATED FOR JAN. 22

Boston's opening indoor track and field meeting will be put on by the Knights of Columbus in Mechanics Hall Saturday evening, January 22, Edmund J. Brandon made this announcement, inserting the fokus of another great treat of indoor baked slam pantamine.

No program event of the program has been made but most likely it will follow the plan of past years. The feature events on the card are the K of C mile for the Hon. James M. Casey trophy, the Chelsea five yard run for the trophy presented by the K of C Council and a sprint race that annually brings the very best speed boys in the country to the mark.

Dual meets with Harvard, Yale, College, Holy Cross, Dartmouth, Yale, Princeton, Brown, Amherst, Williams, Maine, Colby, Bates, Lowdoin, Boston University, Tufts, Worcester Tech, the University of New Hampshire and Rhode Island State competing will be arranged. It is very likely, too, that the B. A. A. will have its full team in attendance of the big New York clubs.

Bulldogs Will Oppose Saints

There is every indication of a large crowd at Fenway Park Saturday afternoon when the Boston Bulldogs will play the St. Alphonsus football team. Inasmuch as the Saints have gone through the season so far undefeated followers of the Pere Marquette and Fitton football teams, both of the Public, are rooting for the Bulldogs to do a job on the Roxbury eleven.

Former Pere Marquette and Fitton players stepped into big league football with the consolidation of the Bulldogs in C. C. F. L. Athletic League, naturally enough followers of both semi-pro teams will take satisfaction in watching their star of a year ago defeat the team which they themselves have been unable to win from.

Thanksgiving Menu for $10 to Serve 12 Persons

By MARTHA LEE

WHAT does the word "November" bring to your mind? Football games or early Christmas shopping or turkey, cranberries and pumpkin pie?

Isn't it really a relief in this age of "fast and grow thin" to have left us this one day when we can return to a genuine and frank enjoyment of an old-fashioned dinner?

Of course the ideal Thanksgiving celebration, the family gathering, really ought to take place at Grandmother's out in the country. But Grandmother is not quite likely to live in a city apartment. However her modern dining table will look very much the same as the country one with its background of snowy linen, shining silver and old-fleet china.

Today, I have for you the promised menu No. 2 for a Thanksgiving dinner for 12 which can be prepared at a cost of $10

Grapefruit Sections
Roast Duck With Orange Sauce and Apple Stuffing
Sweet Potato Croquettes
White Potatoes on Half Shell
Cole Slaw Baked Squash Cider
Holiday Cream Nuts Coffee

In this menu, two roast ducks, each five pounds in weight, were filled with this apple stuffing:

Apple Stuffing—Mix one and one-half cups of boiled, chopped onions, one and one-half cups of chopped sour apples, two tablespoons of butter and one and one-half cups of bread crumbs. Add one and one-half teaspoons of sage, salt and pepper to taste and mix thoroughly.

Sweet Potato Croquettes—Two cups cooked sweet potatoes, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon, two eggs well beaten, two tablespoons milk, sifted bread crumbs.

Press hot potatoes through a ricer. Beat in the eggs, salt and cinnamon. Let partially cool. Form into shape of cylinders and roll in crumbs, then in slightly beaten egg which has been diluted with milk. Roll again in crumbs. Fry in hot Crisco, 375 degrees, until brown.

The white potatoes on the half shell are prepared by washing and peeling medium size potatoes, arranging them in a pan and baking them in a hot oven for about fifty minutes, turning frequently. Cut in half lengthwise. Scoop out the inside and put through a potato ricer. Add one-half cup of hot milk, two teaspoons of butter, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper and salt to taste.

If convenient, one or two pimentoes can be forced through the ricer with the potatoes. Refill the shells with this mixture, sprinkle with grated cheese and bake until delicately brown.

For the cole slaw, select a small head cabbage. Look over the outside leaves and cut in quarters. Then with a sharp knife, shred very thin. Soak in cold water, drain, wipe dry, put in bowl and mix with a cream salad dressing made by mixing together 1 teaspoon mustard, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons flour, one and one-half teaspoons powdered sugar and a dash of cayenne.

Mix the together in the top of a double boiler. Add one teaspoon of butter, beaten yolk of one egg and then, slowly, one cup of vinegar. Cook over boiling water, stirring until the mixture thickens. Then cool and add to one-half cup of thick cream beaten until stiff.

Orange Sauce for Roast Duck—Three tablespoons of butter, one tablespoon flour, one cup stock one-half teaspoon sugar, two grains cayenne, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, grated rind of one-fourth orange, juice of one orange.

Put butter in saucepan and when melted add flour and cook until brown and smooth. Add stock and seasonings and simmer ten minutes. Remove from fire and add grated rind and juice of orange.

Holiday Cream—One and one-half tablespoons gelatine, one-quarter cup cold water, three eggs, one-half cup sugar, two cups milk, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-half cup cherry juice, one cup crushed macaroons and one cup cherries.

Soak gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Separate eggs; slightly beat yolks with sugar and milk and cook in top of double boiler until mixture coats a spoon. Remove from fire, add soaked gelatine and stir until dissolved. Add lemon and cherry juices. When cool, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour over crushed macaroons. Turn into mold and chill. Serve garnished with cherries.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

A GIRL in LOVE is a POOR JUDGE
Of her man's INTELLIGENCE
Of course, the very Fact that he loved HER
Instead of any other girl proves
He has brains, ability and insight
Of course, when a MAN

Is IN LOVE
He is an even POORER JUDGE
Of his girl's mind. In fact,
MANY a LOVER can't judge it at
All because probably he has NEVER NOTICED
IT.

Men look a PRETTY GIRL in the FACE and then just take Her mind for GRANTED. For MOST Men think a SWEET MOUTH means a
SWEET DISPOSITION.
And perfume behind the ears comes from

A fragrant mind.
Girls who have a good FIGURE
Usually figure that MOST MEN love
A girl TWO-THIRDS FIGURE and for the rest—
Full of spirit. But a girl with brains

Overheating the School Room

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

VISITORS were always welcome at the Decatur school because there was such a clean, orderly, industrious group of children who attended. The teachers were above the average and there was a hum of cheerful activity that made the inspectors feel proud of their efforts.

One day the School Nurse was dropped in to find something passed for her Sunday page. And there was really plenty of inspiration for a good story—BUT—the atmosphere in those class rooms was so stifling that she tarried only a few minutes in each one.

Being on friendly terms with some of the teachers she waited until recess to speak to them.

"Why on earth don't you let some air into that room?" she inquired. And the answer to this inquiry was:

"If we raise the window it affects the heating system and some of the other classes suffer from the cold."

"Why have such a heating system?"

"Well, it was just one of those errors that sometimes happen in construction and it has never been remedied."

Since that time the writer has visited hundreds of schools. And with very few exceptions, the atmosphere of the rooms was almost unbearable.

Now, how can any child keep his mind alert under such conditions? The restlessness, the disorder, the headaches, the nervous strain, the apathy of children in school can usually be prevented.

For one thing, the teachers can have all the windows opened occasionally and allow the children to run around the room or take some exercises standing in the aisles. This thing of forcing children to sit still hour after hour, with no outlet for their pent-up energies and natural inclinations is an unnecessary hardship, anyway. The comfort of those children is of much more importance than what the supervisor may think if she should find the room in a stir.

The people who build school houses and those who give the teachers their instructions should be indicted to see for themselves just how many cubic feet of various air the pupils breathe in day after day and year after year.

If your own child is in school, go and visit it there. When you walk out into the room note the sensation that the foul air produces for your nostrils, make another note of your own feeling of weariness and sleepiness. If it doesn't recognize you to that state then your child is certainly in better atmospheric conditions than the majority of pupils.

And at home—does your child try to study in an atmosphere of smoke and impurities from other peoples' lungs. Does he sleep in a place where he has plenty of good pure air. A little thought and constant care will provide this necessity for your little boy and girl.

Heart Disease and Indigestion

By CHAS. A. L. REED, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

DON'T be a victim of just plain "heart scare."

Many people think that all heart disease is fatal, that they have heart disease and that they are going to die when, as a matter of fact, they have no heart disease at all.

Of course there is such a thing as heart disease, and all heart symptoms should be brought to the attention of your physician. But don't be scared about it.

The majority of chances are, first that you haven't heart disease and next that, if you have, you will get well. Most of the symptoms that the general public considers signs of heart disease are due to indigestion.

The stomach lies close to the heart, and so pains in the left breast, fluttering feelings in the heart region, and a feeling of discomfort or constriction in the chest are all signs of stomach trouble with flatulence.

Heartburn, which is now recognized by most people to be a digestive symptom, shows by the meaning of the word how intimately the heart and the stomach are connected in the public mind.

Palpitation is an irregular or forcible action of the heart that the patient notices, and, although often a frightening symptom, it is hardly ever a sign that the heart has anything wrong with it. The real irregularities of beat, caused by organic disease, generally pass unnoticed. But people frequently complain of the most distressing sensations of throbbing and pumping when all the doctor hears with his stethoscope is a regular normal beat.

Palpitation generally indicates an oversensitive nervous system. It is very common in hysteria and neurasthenia, especially the neurasthenia that goes with indigestion.

Strong emotion, such as fright, can cause it. Like most nervous manifestations, it is more common in women than in men.

These forms of imagined heart trouble are, therefore, usually a sign that the patient has been lead too much by his fears. He need not fear for his heart, but he had better cut down his drinks, smokes, tea and coffee. He should avoid hot baths, take plenty of exercise and be careful not to overeat. His doctor will prescribe the regime that will suit him best.

Manicuring the Nails

By MARIA JERITZA

THE modern woman is well groomed to her fingertips and also at her fingertips. For in business and in social life, as professional woman, artist and home-maker she realizes the value of daintiness and beauty.

Keeping the fingernails perfectly manicured is such a simple matter that there is small excuse for even the busiest woman who fails to have attractive nails.

If you can afford to have your nails manicured by an expert, do so by all means. You will find the process restful and it will conserve your energy for other things. But if you must do your own, do not be discouraged. Little time will be required, and a modern manicuring outfit is not expensive.

Olive oil you will need—plenty of it—also, good nail polish, a nail bleach or cream and if possible, one of the preparations on the market for loosening cuticle at the nail base. If you cannot afford the special creams that are prepared for cleansing underneath the fingernails, ordinary cleansing cold cream will do. You will also need a buffer with a removable chamois top, an orange-wood stick, emery boards and absorbent cotton.

The night before you manicure, heat a little olive oil in a small granite-ware dish, over a slow fire. Soak your fingertips in this warm oil and rub it thoroughly into the nails and cuticle. It will feel deliciously soothing and will take your cuticle like velvet.

The next day, bring your manicure instruments in their neat box, spread them out on your table and begin.

First file your nails to a delicate oval, like a filbert nut, leaving them just long enough to protect your delicate fingertips.

Next, dipping an orange stick in the preparation you use to loosen cuticle, wrap the tip of the stick in absorbent cotton and again dip it in this mixture. Loosen the skin all about the base of your nails with this cotton-wrapped orange wood stick and pass it also under your nail tips to cleanse them.

Rinse your hands in a bowl of luke-warm water and dry them carefully, pressing back your cuticle with the towel.

Now spread a bit of cleansing cream beneath each nail to remove the last bit of dust or soil. Finally, spread a bit of nail polish, either liquid, paste or powder, over each nail. If you choose a liquid enamel polish, let it dry then wash your hands, and your manicure will be complete.

The SECRET STUDIO

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

A Boston Romance with a Charming Heroine

CHAPTER 51.

HE stroked her hair. "It wouldn't be fair—to you. I told you that. One day you'd hate me for letting you pledge the years ahead—"

"But if we don't—I mean—I may grow to hate you if" She struggled pitifully in his grasp. "If it seems wrong to me"—

"If it is wrong to take love when it comes to you," Rosemary? When two strange lives touch as at is of the earth, like you and I, find each other, and then a thing comes to us, is it wrong? Can you feel in your heart that it is—"

He was kissing her eyes, her soft cheek, where the long dark lashes swept it. "Don't you trust me, Rosemary—don't you believe me?"

"Oh, yes!" she clung to him, half crying. "Yes, I do—only—I don't know—I don't know what to tell you. Stan, will you promise—"

"What, dear?"

"Promise—" She drew away from him sharply. "Oh, all chance is nothing on the roof, looking in the window there—didn't you see?"

"Where—Rosemary—Good Lord—I saw him—" He threw the French doors that opened on to the tiny roof garden wide and leaped out into the moonlight—

"Wait! I—"

"Dear God!"

There was a splintering crash in the moonlight, and it seemed to her he moaned. With a faint, gasping cry she fainted. Her white forehead struck a brass andiron as she fell.

The brass scattered, and then it was very still in the room. A thin red stream trickled from her head and formed a little pool on the floor.

She lay on the polished floor, with the moonlight, a small, lamp lighting wan to bathe her body, turning her temple, slowly forming a widening ruby pool.

She struck her head—she—she struck her head, you know—on the fireplace—no matter—I went in close to see—there in—"

Slow down in her eyes, her hands fluttered at her side. Sloan was bending over her, cradling her head at her forehead. His face was a queer green color when he turned it to her from the fireplace. His mouth was working painfully. It's bleeding —" His voice broke.

"She's all right—just a little superficial. I'll be getting some Perry at Good night—

Someone was walking across the room. "Sloan, I have the windows open? Little air for her?"

Sloan seemed to be trying to speak, to gather himself in, then and answer the other man, but no words came.

The duet from the ballroom drew on her ears.

She rose full up and looked at the beautiful, kind face so near to hers. "Would you close the window?" she asked.

It's a reassurance—it's for—I—I came that hard self possession to it, and swayed slightly. "Sloan—he's here and gone. He was trembling afraid."

"Did she—she whispered. "What happened out there?"

"I came to my private second floor West room, because of seven until I grabbed and returned home at three p—

"When I came home I just stayed dear you were to me. I thought I did—but I didn't—"

His voice sounded queer and muffled. Were there tears glistening in his eyes, or was it just the heat from the candles? Rosemary didn't know. She only knew she had found Sloan, that he belonged to her, and nothing would ever come between them again.

"It was that man, Sloan—I know it was

"Dear, you didn't even see him Did you?"

"No—but—"

She only gazed at him, her eyes wide with fright.

"He's Quentin Quinn & Warburton—big house, known all over the country, and he's here on a divorce case. Has apartments in the house. He was away from her on account husband and he had a lip he was here in this apartment house. He was very drunk, told me the whole thing confidentially.

"Of course he saw I wasn't the man he was after, and he apologized and he left pretty sick over the boner he pulled.

"He knew," her lips were smiling, her eyes were dark pools full of terror, "he knew. He's after me You let him fool you"

He rushed to her. "Rosemary—calm yourself—you mustn't—"

But it was too late, she was incapable of calming herself now. Hysteria gripped her She began to laugh, wildly, horribly, in high sobbing breaths that seemed to tear her lungs, to strangle her. "He's after—don't you see" Oh, Sloan—it's so—funny!" She began again. "To think of him—putting that over on—you!"

And suddenly she was crying uncontrollably, terribly. As she had never cried before.

"You can't leave me now!" She caught her, as she sank, exhausted, to the floor

"I Didn't Know How Dear You Were to Me," Sloan Told Her

He came back and knelt beside her, rubbing her cold little hands, kissing them. "Thank God you're all right—when I came back and my you—lying there—"

"I am all right! But I want to know what happened! Won't you help me—you're no good at all!" she begged, half laughing, half crying.

"I guess—I lost my head." He lifted her, held her in his arms, uncertain what to do next.

"I meant—just to help me—I'm all right!"

She began to remember the noise. He put her off.

"I couldn't stay here—not unless I knew—I'm afraid! Sloan, could you drive me to Gertie's? But it's so late—

"It and it's no good going out, you'd be better off resting quietly here. I'll tell you—I should think you'd want to let that man go only on account of your being acquainted—"

"It wasn't me—don't let me! It was that man—here!" Her voice climbed shrill and quaveringly.

He laid her on the couch. "Rosemary—I'm going to call a doctor, I want to make sure—"

She sat up, all her senses clear at last. "No—no—I don't want one here, it almost stopped bleeding—just a bump. If you'd get some gauze and adhesive tape—there's a little first aid kit in the medicine closet—"

"Yes, that's a good idea He took a moment hard and knelt before her again. "Rosemary, I love you I—I didn't know how much."

She cried when he put the tape on her forehead. "It's because I'm happy. We—we're sort of found each other, Sloan." Her arm slipped through his. Her hands closed on his.

He looked down at her, still shaken, the mask of cool indifference all gone. "I didn't know how

"The Making of a Husband"; Ann Lisle's Serial

"THIS was a Paris cable to one of our papers. And in it there was a front page story of the tremendous success of a fine American song by a young Arlette Valleau, who had stepped in on a few days' notice to understudy the prima donna of an opera company, and who had scored a great success. And after an account of the triumph, there was added a brief paragraph which read

"One of the most interested spectators of the new star's rising was James Hunter Harrison, an American business man who flew from Genoa with his four hours landing there in order not to miss the debut of his little protege. Harrison discovered Miss Valleau and gave her her start in the musical world. His joy in the young girl's success is one of the conspicuous features of her triumph. Also in the audience on the night of the Valleau ovation were Nicholas Perry, another American, and Bertram Lingard, Lord Carboys. Our newly discovered star is well supplied with satellites."

"Perhaps you don't think you'd better be divorcing Jim now," said Pat

Why was I suddenly so set and cold and stubborn? For this is what I realized.

"Nothing in that article affects my attitude, Pat. I knew what I must do. Gossip can't shake me."

Some imp of mischief must have dictated my reply to Pat Dalton when he showed me the Paris cable about Arlette Valleau's success and the "satellites" who attended the rising of the new star. I didn't mean to antagonize Pat. But I was so devastated by the thought of Jim's flying from Genoa by airplane to reach Paris in time for Arlette's first appearance, and so it didn't occur to me to take Pat into my confidence and explain that I had determined to give Jim his freedom even before reading the cable that made it imperative for me to act.

I am not sure that I should have reversed my determination to keep my own counsel and write Jim before telling the family that I was going to divorce him even after my protests against their advising this very course. But it is possible that I might have burst out with it if Pat hadn't been so enraged by my truthful statement that nothing in the article influenced me to change the course on which I had already decided.

Without waiting for me to contradict my remarks he leaped to his feet and cried out furiously:

"It's a mule you are, Anne, and not a woman at all. I'm after being friendly advice is wasted on you and making it the more unwelcome and unprofitable. To blind fool are you, not to see what Jim is after? It's a divorce he wants, and nothing else will satisfy him. He's sick of you and the children and the whole family, and he's after getting rid of you all. Can't you see that? Can't you understand it? He's sick of you, I tell you, and he wants me to try it with him sometime, on some small pretext or other. Don't you understand? He's afraid of you. He won't dare to write you. I'm sure. Your secret service couldn't do half as much as I've done."

"Well, I'm glad you did and very much obliged, I'm sure," I flung back at him. "I'm not afraid of Jim. I'm not afraid of anything. I'll get him out of my system because I don't love him any more, and I'll be glad to be rid of him. I'm not afraid of him

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

TO HIM, love is a scarlet cloak. He wears it for a day— Then doffs it with the morning, And drops it by the way.

To him, love is a little flame— A pleasant candle light— That burns a little while or so, And dies out with the night.

To HER, love is a lamp aglow— A flame of heart's desire, By night, a star that guides her feet— By day, an altar-fire.

Can yet, they seek to walk a while, As lovers, hand-in-hand. HOW can they ever find the way? How CAN they UNDERSTAND?

A man's heart is like a parking space these days; if a girl lingers there a minute over the usual time limit, she gets peremptory notice to remove herself.

A married man never knows what he wants to do until he discovers what his wife doesn't WANT him to do, then he gets a real inspiration—and does it.

Too many girls are trying to make a "career" of love these days—but love isn't a career. It's either a curtain-raiser to marriage, or just an amusing little avocation.

The most dangerous combination in the world—A lot of money, a flair for a Broadway blonde, and a smooth-working fountain pen.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

Teacher (holding report card): "Is this your father's signature?"

Boy (hesitatingly): "As near as I can make it out."

O. H. WILKINSON,
P. O. Box 344, New Bedford.

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Boston Club decided to write for pictures of movie actors. They hoped to receive a collection sufficiently large to decorate the walls of their new club rooms. Gilda Mason was the only one who objected to the plan.

Gilda was conservative. Besides, she had a cousin who had been quite prominent in the movies and she knew how disgusted stars often become with fans and fan mail. Since the plan was for each member to write personally to one or more actors, Gilda objected seriously to placing herself in a position which she considered ridiculous.

"Be a good scout, Gil," the club secretary begged. "There'll be nothing personal in this. It'll just mean a photo—probably a rare one at a 'yours truly' and a signature on it. What'll John Barrymore or Thomas Meighan know about one little Gilda Mason?"

So in spite of prejudice, Gilda was persuaded to join in the movement.

"If I HAVE to," Miss Mason observed decisively, "I choose Rodney Rankin for mine. He isn't one of the biggest but he's terribly handsome and certainly one of the coming stars. Cousin Fanny says they predict things for him in Hollywood."

"Help yourself!" laughed the secretary and so, for the moment, the incident was closed. Then came that period of waiting which enthusiastic youth finds tedious. Gradually one after another of the Boston members received pictures of the prominent cinema artists, all decorously signed, "Your truly" or "Yours gratefully," or perhaps just with a name, until every one but Gilda had received the photo requested. The girls seized this as an especial opportunity for "ragging" her.

"Why didn't you pick a live one, Gil? Probably hasn't made money enough for photos yet"; and like comments were hurled in her direction. She began to watch for the postman, and when his calls continued to avail her nothing her heart sank.

Finally, her request was answered. She found the actor's picture on the hall table, where they kept the mail, one day when Nellie Williams, the club secretary walked home with her. There was no opportunity for secret rejoicing in the privacy of her own room. She boldly ran her fingers under the flap of the envelope, with all the air of boredom that it was possible for her to assume.

There it was, a good-sized photo of this handsome cinema Adonis, and across the bottom of it was inscribed in ink, "Affectionately thine, Rodney."

The sight of this personal, intimate signature turned Gilda Mason cold, for Nellie Williams was watching her in amusement. That wasn't all! Fastened to the top of the picture with a clip was a strip of paper upon which was written: "I'll answer your dandy letter soon."

"Aren't you the sly one!" Nellie chuckled. "After all your talk about this thing being poor taste, common and tommy-rot! You pick out your own particular sheik and write him a personal letter! Just wait till I tell the girls!"

Gilda was drenched with shame and confusion. She was utterly unable to account for the message or the intimate signature on Rankin's photograph. Certainly she had not penned a line to him beyond the simple request for his picture!

But the Bontons would never believe that now.

One after another they called her up to deride her, when Nellie Williams had had time to spread the news.

No telling how she would have borne up under all this. As it was, Fate seemed particularly kind in bringing her a wire from Cousin Fanny next morning. It asked her to come to Hollywood at once, to help with the children who were both ill.

Ordinarily Gilda hated sick room service, but right now she greeted Cousin Fanny's wire with a welcome. Of course the Bontons insisted that there was more to the affair between Rodney Rankin and Gilda Mason than any one knew. Why had she rushed off to Hollywood so soon after receiving this picture and the message, they asked.

Gilda left regardless of their taunting. After Fanny's little girls were recovered, she signified desire to visit the studios. Fanny's old association with the work and the life there gave her unlimited entree everywhere, so Gilda determined to meet Rodney Rankin.

The opportunity came sooner than she anticipated. Some one gave an evening for a new celebrity and Cousin Fanny was invited. Of course her guest was included in the invitation. When Gilda actually met Rodney Rankin, his admiration seemed openly evident. She wondered whether she should censure him for something which he probably considered a mere prank. He was boyish enough for that.

Rankin began calling quite regularly at Cousin Fanny's home. Eventually he seemed on the brink of proposing to Gilda. And there was no mistaking the fact that Gilda had lost her heart to him.

"I'd be afraid to marry an actor, Rodney," she told him one day. "They never remain true to their love. Even you are a philanderer!" she accused him.

"What do you mean?" he asked, moving back to regard her perplexedly. "I object to being called a philanderer. An actor can be just as steadfast as a man in any other profession!" he added hotly.

"Wait"; she commanded. "I'll show you why I accuse you."

She ran up to her room and returned with the photograph just as she had received it, the slip of paper still clinging to the top.

"Behold—your own infamy!" she said, extending the picture. "Affectionately thine,' when I only wrote a simple request for a picture. And that was five months ago."

"By George!" Rankin exclaimed, taking the photo in his hand. "Are you the girl that got this? It was the last of an old order and I had put in into an envelope to send to my aunt in the east. This is the picture my secretary must have appropriated for the fan mail. I'll keep this, dear. I want to give you another—a later one and I'm going to write upon it, 'With all my heart—always.'"

When the Bontons received cards announcing the marriage of Gilda Mason and Rodney Rankin they exclaimed as in a single voice: "I told you so."

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Do not expect the perfect deed upon this faulty Earth; but try, through each man's act, to read his purpose and its worth. Oh, count the weight of all the good that lay in his intent, his tender thought, his kindly mood; not what he wrought, but meant. For motives all a-glow with love may animate the soul, and does, always, the purpose in his scroll.

yet the willing hand may prove too weak to grasp its goal. For one, the great achievement waits, he holds the master key that opens life's most guarded gates and gives him passage free. But for another, barriers rise which he can never climb, grim walls that tower to the skies, built up by life and time. Forget, then, if the part he plays is but a minor role, and add to what he with love may animate the soul, and does, always, the purpose in his scroll.

FAMOUS MOTHERS

THE mother of Daniel O'Connell, Irishman of first rank in the field of oratory, was perhaps the most fitting influence in the remarkable development of this great man's personality.

Catherine O'Mullane was not a pretty woman, and it has been said that she brought into the family of O'Connell many unpleasant physical features which had hitherto not been known to the blood of the tribe.

Living in a period of warlike self-reliance, she was not unlike others of the time, and she spent no time in coddling her young son—a fact which was a blessing in that it bred in him the ability to think and care for himself, qualities which, in his later life, proved invaluable.

It is characteristic of Mrs. O'Connell's vigor and hardihood, that, while stopping at an old hut of one of the retainers, she was delivered of the son who was later to gain such fame. She was a lady of the first rank, and was noted for her shrewd domestic ability, and for a mind always bright and alive to any situation. She left O'Connell much to his own devices, although when occasion demanded, she was the first to help him set things right.

MEDBURY'S SAYINGS---BY JOHN P. MEDBURY

A PROMINENT business man put an ad in the paper the other day for ten homely stenographers. This is his busy season and he wants to get some work done.

PRETTY girls are decorative, but he can't pay $300 a week for a bunch of ornaments.

BESIDES, his wife won't let him have any beautiful typists in the office. She's too smart; she used to work for him herself.

HE'S the kind of a fellow who dictates with one hand.

BUT the private secretary he has now is quite old. In fact, she's on her last lap.

HE doesn't care if his wife won't let him employ any pretty girls. He hires them homely and sends them to a beauty parlor.

HE loves to be busy. He likes his hands full of work and his arms full of women.

HE fired the chief clerk last week for going to lunch with the good looking stenographer. He claimed it was his day to take her out.

WHY should he pay her thirty-five dollars a week and let somebody else have all the privileges?

BESIDES, the homely girls are just as good company and they're more careful what they order.

THE beautiful ones want everything on the bill of fare, including the address.

THERE'S no sense in making a lot of money in the morning and then losing it at lunch.

A LITTLE flirtation is perfectly harmless. Very few men deceive their wives. They only think they do.

ONE woman called on her husband the other day and of the office boy told her he was in a directors' meeting, and he was. One of the directors was asking him for a new evening gown.

THERE'S a broker in Wall Street who's so crazy about his wife that he calls her up every day at noon. He wants to make sure she's home.

HE said the only reason he went to lunch with all the stenographers was that he didn't want to be Ritzy.

WHEN his wife caught him kissing his private secretary he said he was only doing what was right.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

NEW YORK GARMENT STRIKERS GO BACK

New York, Nov. 18 (I.N.S.).—The twenty-three weeks' strike of the garment workers was at an end today.

The strikers voted to accept the peace terms already agreed upon by their leaders and the manufacturers, 9,945 to 2,533.

The new contract will remain in effect until June, 1929. It grants slightly higher wages, as recommended by the Governor's commission, but allows the manufacturers to organize their shops once a year, with the right where a certain number of workers are employed to discharge 10 per cent. of the working force.

The strikers reported for work today.

INSTALMENT PLAN LAUDED

New York, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Instalment buying, despite defects, is credited with a large share in America's present prosperity by economists attending the annual meeting of the Academy of Political Science here.

Edwin R. A. Seligman, professor of political economy at Columbia University, places instalment sales at between $5,000,000,000 and $7,000,000,000 out of an annual $40,000,000,000 business. He declared the instalment plan had proved a notable success in the automobile business, although a failure in some other lines.

John J. Rascob, chairman of the finance committee of the General Motors Corporation, defined instalment buying as "consumer credit," and asserted the desire for motor cars provides an incentive to work which results in converting otherwise idle hours into productive energy. He denied that automobiles were purchased at the expense of other products and predicted that defects in the instalment plan would be corrected and criticism abate.

John E. Rovensky, first vice-president of the Bank of America, believes it will be easier to judge the plan after "we have passed through the next period of business depression and unemployment," but is convinced that the plan is here to stay.

John Maurice Clark, professor of economics at Columbia University, sees danger of "over-persuading the customer and stimulating over-confidence in the seller."

$178,311 FOR CROKER'S SON

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 18 (I.N.S.).—Richard Croker, Jr., today is $178,311 richer as the result of a decision by the Court of Appeals.

The court ruled Croker should receive that amount from his father's estate.

The litigation grew out of a break between Croker and his father in 1916, after the elder Croker had wed a second time.

Croker claimed that while acting as administrator of his father's estate he had made personal loans to the elder Croker which had never been returned.

COOLIDGE RECEIVES FASCIST AIR CHAMP

Washington, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Major Mario de Bernardi, "the flying Fascist," who is taking all of America's aeroplane records back to Premier Mussolini, came to Washington today to receive, with his teammates, the personal congratulations of President Coolidge on his victory in the recent Schneider cup races at Norfolk, Va.

In that contest he eclipsed the world record established by American racers by driving the little red Macchi-Fiat monoplane provided for him by the Italian Premier at an average speed of 246.496 miles an hour for the 350 kilometer course, 248.136 for the 100 kilometer closed circuit and 248.00228 for the 300 kilometer closed circuit.

95 Pairs of Shoes, Old Ones, Odd Ones, for Museum

Washington, Nov. 18 (A.P.)—The Smithsonian Institution, international wonderland of historical and natural curiosities, has received a fine collection of old shoes.

The exhibit, consisting of ninety-five pairs, all properly marked and with neatly lettered pedigree card tucked in the toes, was presented by Mrs. W. C. Huntington of Washington, whose father, the late Frank G. Carpenter, specialized during forty years of globe-trotting in the collection of native footwear.

CONSUELO IN 'HIDING'

Marlborough by the Rota Tribunal of the Catholic Church at Rome.

Madame Balsan has cancelled all social engagements, according to her intimate friends, and is refusing to see anyone. With the publication of the news regarding the papal annulment, her Loma was besieged by reporters, compelling her to fly to the home of servants, including her personal maid, for fear of their talking.

Colonel Jacques Balsan and Mme. Balsan are preparing to leave in ten days for the Riviera.

English Clergymen Back Bishop Manning

London, Nov. 18.—Clergymen of the Church of England are unanimous in endorsing the protest of Bishop Manning of New York, at his action of the Vatican in annulling the marriage of the former Consuelo Vanderbilt and the Duke of Marlborough, according to the Rt. Rev. W. H. Carnegie, canon of Westminster.

"The whole situation is so bewildering and the decision of the Rome tribunal so extraordinary that I hardly like to comment on it until I am more sure of the facts," said Canon Carnegie.

"If Bishop Manning has been correctly quoted," he said, "I am absolutely in agreement with him. I sincerely believe that the whole clergy of the Church of England believe likewise."

Bishop Manning is quoted here as having stated that:

"It seems incredible to me that the Roman Catholic Church which takes so strong a position against divorce, should show such discrimination in favor of the Duke of Marlborough.

"It would be a serious matter and most dangerous in its implications, if Rome should claim the right to annul a marriage entered into in good faith and which resulted in the birth of two children and which was accepted as binding by both parties for many years."

HENRY MORGENTHAU TO SPEAK IN BOSTON

Henry Morgenthau, United States ambassador to Turkey for three years just before the war, and at the same time in charge of the interests in Turkey of European nations, will speak at the Old South meeting house forum Sunday on "The Greek Refugees Problem." Richard W. Hale, treasurer of the Old South Association, will preside.

IT'S A PLEASANT LIFE IN THIS NAVY

SAILORS TO JUDGE IT

The gob is Wallace Beery and the girl nearest him is Dorothy Easton. They are in the film "We're in the Navy Now," which will be shown to the sailors at the Chelsea Naval Hospital tonight.

GOBS SEE NAVY FILM TONIGHT

Tonight is the night!

Several hundred bluejackets in "sick-bay" at Chelsea Naval Hospital—crippled, sick and convalescent boys who did valorous work for Uncle Sam on the high seas—will pull back the curtain of their maritime life and once more look upon the comedy aspects of the Great War as viewed through a gob's eyes.

They will see "We're in the Navy Now," a comedy of naval life from training camps to dreadnaughts, which features Raymond Hatton and Wallace Beery. The picture is given by the Boston Evening American in conjunction with the Metropolitan Theatre, where the picture will be shown next week.

The entertainment is on of a series which the American and the Metropolitan have been conducting jointly during the last year, and which has embraced several veterans' hospitals and childrens' institutions.

Besides Beery and Hatton, the men at the hospital will view the antics of Chester Conklin, a great favorite with them, Tom Kennedy, who played with the two stars in their last funny-side-of-war picture "Behind the Front," Lorraine Eason, the charming and mysterious heroine, Donald Keith and several other screen notables.

The plans of the American and Metropolitan in showing this picture will not cease with the Naval Hospital. They also include the showing of the film to the Massachusetts Hospital School for Children in Canton. The picture will be shown there Friday afternoon at 2 to 200 crippled kiddies.

50 ARRESTED IN PACIFIC DRIVE ON RUM-RUNNERS

San Francisco, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Still fighting to wipe out the last vestige of what it regards as the most powerful liquor running combine ever found on the Pacific Coast, the government today sought 30 more persons against whom warrants have been issued.

Prohibition officials have arrested 50 persons, some of them wealthy and influential residents of the United States and Canada, in its drive against the Consolidated Exporters, Inc., of Vancouver, B. C. Two of the fastest rum ships on the coast had been captured, and with them having been taken only after being fired upon.

DROPS DEAD AT NEWS OF BROTHER'S DEATH

Miss Ellen Connery 60, of Milton, received a telegram from authorities at the Beverly Hospital. It said: "Your brother, William, died here following a shock."

Tears came to the eyes of the aged woman, she reeled and fell dead. A double funeral will be solemnized for them today in St. Margaret's Church, Scituate Harbor. William was 62, and for many years was employed on the Frederick Ayer estate, Pride's Crossing.

OLD TIME COASTING SHIP OWNER DIES

St. John, N. B., Nov. 18.—The death is announced at Montreal of Robert C. Elkin of St. John, for nearly half a century one of the best-known vessel owners along the North Atlantic seaboard. Mr. Elkin at one time owned numerous vessels registered from Boston, where several members of the Elkin family reside.

FORGET HEALTH AND LIVE LONG, SAYS MAN, 96

Columbus, Ga., Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Alfred O. Blackmar, ninety-six, and his wife, ninety-five, formerly Mary Ann Blood of Charlton, Mass., were observing their seventy-fifth anniversary today in their home. In the receiving line was Mrs. John L. Peabody, ninety-two, only surviving bridesmaid.

Fifty-one members of the family, including John Blackmar, seventy-three, and 1,000 guests were present. Mr. Blackmar gave his recipe for longevity.

"First of all select some long lived ancestors," he said. "Don't pay too much attention to your health. I know a man once who tried all medicines recommended to him and eventually he succumbed to the curatives."

Mrs. Blackmar's parents came to Columbus from New England in 1831. One ancestor, Stanley Westcott, was one of the first seven members of the original Baptist Church in this country.

GRANGE FIRM ON ENFORCEMENT

Portland, Me., Nov. 18 (A.P.).—The National Grange entered the final sessions of its sixtieth annual meeting with action on resolutions dealing with prohibition enforcement and the operation of Muscle Shoals Congress as the most important part of its unfinished work.

One of the resolutions prohenied yesterday made a demand for a thorough investigation of charges that liquor was sold openly on American ships outside the 12-mile limit. Another reaffirmed Grange stand for rigid enforcement of the prohibition laws and opposition to all attempts to weaken sentiment for the Eighteen Amendment by "straw votes and misleading referenda."

SPLIT ON MUSCLESHOALS.

The officers admitted that the Muscle Shoals question might bring a split. Failure of the committees on resolutions to report on two conflicting resolutions regarding the operation of Muscle Shoals was taken as evidence that the committee had been unable to agree on a resolution setting forth the Grange's attitude in the satisfaction of the opposing factions.

One group, supported the resolution submitted by David H. Agans of New Jersey, urged upon the National Grange to endorse a long-term lease of Muscle Shoals to privat interests for the manufacture of fertiliser, and in the event of war, munitions.

BANK GOSS RESOLUTION.

The other stands for the resolution by A. S. Goss of Washington, seeking to put the Grange on record in favor of government operation for the same purposes.

Before the adjournment last night the meeting adopted resolutions calling for the appointment of a special committee to study the Canadian wheat pool with a view to organizing a genuine American pool if practicable, preventing hidden tariff on foreign vegetable oils, endorsing cooperative commodity marketing on a nation-wide scale and opposing all movements to invalidate the "packer consent decree."

OLIVE BRANCH TO FRAZIER

Washington, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Republican leaders in the Senate are ready to hold out the olive branch to pro-La Follette of North Dakota, the sole survivor of the group of four Senators they read out of the party in the first flush of success at the polls in 1924.

Admittedly Senator Frazier occupies a strategic position in any negotiations with the old guard as his vote very likely will be essential to the Republicans if they are to organize the Senate in the seventieth Congress, which convenes next year.

Should Senator Frazier contemplate return to the party fold, and his friends have indicated he will, he will be given back the places on the standing committees to which his seniority would entitle him, and likely will become chairman of the Indian affairs committee in the seventieth Congress.

JUDGE JERE R. KANE, NOTED WIT, DIES AT 71

Spencer, Nov. 18.—Judge Jere R. Warning to Girls

And to Their Mothers

"GIRLS," SAYS THIS WISE DOCTOR, "BOOTLEG WHISKEY IS RUINING YOUR COMPLEXIONS."

Dr. Charles F. Pabst says to American girls: "If you really want to keep that schoolgirl complexion leave bootleg whiskey and gin alone."

This doctor, probably and unfortunately, preaching in vain, says:

"The festive flask is too much in evidence at social gatherings of the young, and bootleg whiskey is ruining the skin of the American girl. Even if whiskey is made from the purest substances it contains fusel oil and other poisonous by-products which are only eliminated by years of evaporation and ageing. Almost all the whiskey sold illegally contains fusel oil and other poisons which are particularly irritating to the skin, and induce severe types of acne and eczema. These diseases usually attack the face, and often leave permanent scars which give the skin a dried and wrinkled appearance. After continued onslaughts of liquor, the kidneys become irritated and the eyelids become swollen and puffy. The nose and cheeks eventually become flushed, then permanently red, and the ensemble is a picture sad to contemplate."

Unfortunately, bootleg whiskey and heavy painting for girls' faces came in at the same time. Almost anything that cocktails can do to the skin can be hidden, at least temporarily, by thick rouge, lipstick, etc.

In the end bootleg alcohol will tell its story in the puffy face, deep wrinkles that can't be hidden, premature old age and positive ugliness. But that takes time, and foolish youth thinks little of time.

Every doctor knows that women are less able than men to stand the effects of alcohol, morally, physically or in every other way, including the effect on their complexions.

Dr. Pabst also warns women against foolish dieting that makes them "pathologically thin." He gives young women this warning:

"Another fad without sensible foundation is the desire on the part of girls and women to become abnormally thin; or, as I term it, 'pathologically thin,' because in many instances actual disease is deliberately acquired in order to rid the body of normal tissue. Dieting without medical supervision is extremely hazardous, because certain foods and substances are absolutely necessary in order to maintain normal health. The human body is the most wonderful and complicated chemical factory in the world, yet many people tamper with it as if they were handling a concrete mixer.

"A striking sad example of improper dieting was the case of a shapely motion-picture actress, who became a nervous wreck and blasted her career by restricting herself to tomatoes, spinach and orange juice. A director told her she was becoming too heavy, and without medical advice she began the starvation process, staking it against her career. She lost."

Fathers and mothers that have daughters with the modern, fashionable "skinny figure" would do well to find out what their daughters are doing to obtain the skeleton-like, "fashionable" shape.

The following statement by Dr. Pabst also deserves attention:

"A girl of today who is of normal weight is considered fat by her friends, and rather than be normal and healthy, she adopts one of the many dangerous methods which are supposed to reduce the weight. Some of the misguided ones begin by overexercising and under-eating, others take a drug which is highly poisonous and oxidizes the fatty tissue, not only on the external parts of the body, but also in the heart muscle and in other vital organs where a certain amount of fat is a necessity.

"I have known other instances where young girls refused to sleep more than a few hours out of the twenty-four because of their frantic endeavor to become 'pathologically thin.'"

Dr. Pabst gives you other warnings, for instance:

Girls dieting foolishly "frequently develop furunculosis." That is a skin disease, producing an irritating, successive crop of boils. Others have dermatitis, an inflammation of the skin. And having the hair shaved often at the back of the neck or cut with clippers is apt to develop what is called "flapper's rash."

Girls that decide to eat, sleep, live and bathe naturally, and use thick paint on the fence or barn, not on their FACES, are to be congratulated.

There are not so many of them!

Out of Disaster

A great disaster—an earthquake, a famine, or a hurricane—tends to re-establish the real values of life.

Men who are discouraged over small losses in business or who are depressed by a failure of their plans are made to see that they still possess the first essential for success and happiness.

For, after all, "is not the life more than meat and the body than raiment?"

Those who escape with their lives from a terrible disaster cry out: "I am all right; never mind the property loss!"

And those who look on are made to realize that they, too, retain the thing that matters most—life.

PROTECTING A MAN AGAINST SELF

By DR. FRANK CRANE

It is a difficult problem just how far we should go in saving a man from his own weakness.

A boy is a drunkard and he is breaking his mother's heart by his wrongful indulgence.

What should be done with him?

He ought to be taken to an asylum and confined until he has mastered his weakness, but this cannot be done without his consent.

If one were to go to the devil all by himself and not drag other people down, the matter would be simpler. Then he could indulge in drug-taking to his heart's content. The sooner he were dead and out of the way the better for everybody.

But in his downfall he must wreck also the lives of parents, wife and other relatives.

It is the nub of the prohibition question. There is a radical difference in point of view here. Undoubtedly the wets are right when they say a man should go to ruin if he wants to. The Lord himself gives every man the privilege of undoing himself.

But the question arises in regard to the rights of others. The difficulty is that no man can wreck his own career without wrecking that of others.

The same thing holds with noxious drugs. Every country controls their use and sale to a degree. But the drug taker is a canny soul and there have been cases where an addict frequents several doctors and several drug stores in order to obtain a sufficient supply of harmful drugs.

The trouble is that most harmful drugs, if they are used with intelligence and proper caution, may be helpful.

The problem is to confine the employment of injurious drugs to physicians who are conscientious and scrupulous to use them properly.

It is one of the vital and important problems in almost every country. How far may we go in protecting a man against himself for the sake of others?

Who shall give correct answer to this question?

MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR ENVIRONMENT!

You dread the coming of Winter.

Again and again you call yourself a fool for remaining in a climate which you think is far more disagreeable than some other climates.

In fact, you have talked this pet peeve of yours so much at home that you have made the whole family dissatisfied and discontented.

In all probability you often say that if you were free, not tied to the necessity of supporting a family, you would seek a more desirable place to live.

And it's mighty unkind of you to make such statements.

You are responsible for your family in more ways than one.

Before you possessed a family you might have located elsewhere.

Then why didn't you establish your home in that talked of location?

You should have realized that marriage entails responsibilities.

One can't raise a family successfully and happily by constantly changing and breaking up the home every so often.

Why add to discomfort by complaining? Think of the really beautiful days ahead, no matter where you live, and make the most of your plans.

Three of the twenty-two councilors who have been successful at CITY HALL in putting through major improvements under the NICHOLS' regime are THOMAS H. GEREN OF CHARLESTOWN, who succeeded in having Medford street paved; TIMOTHY J. DONOVAN of EAST BOSTON, father of the new pumping station order and WALTER E. WRAGG of HYDE PARK, who secured the widening of Ashland street.

One of the busiest department heads in CITY HALL is MAJOR CHARLES T. HARDING, of the STREET COMMISSIONERS. It has become almost a race between him and PRESIDENT CHARLES G. MAJOR HARDING, besides being a business man and vitally interested in traffic in connection with his official duties, finds time to accept nearly all invitations sent to him.

NAUTICAL MEN.

When the BOSTON LODGE of ELKS next decides to induct seafaring men into the order, a seagoing goat will be provided. NORMAN ROSE and HOWARD BIAS of BASE 5, EAST BOSTON, went through the formula of initiation with never a murmur. When asked after the ceremony how they felt they replied in unison: "Simple. You should see the salt horse we have to ride in the outfit." And seaweed was sprinkled all around.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE following true story may seem sensational to you. It is not sensational. It is not even uncommon. Judge Ben Lindsey in his amazing book, "The Revolt of Modern Youth," gives a score of such stories.

They are tragic stories. They do not make pleasant reading. But it will do us no good to squirm and storm and deny them. They are part of our present life and we must adjust ourselves to them.

Such adjustments will strike deep at the root of our most cherished traditions. But some of our most cherished traditions need a shock or two. In fact, we'd be better humans, and many leaps nearer civilization, if they were uprooted entirely.

I refer particularly to the tradition which brands the child out of wedlock.

Two months from now, Rosalind will bear such a child. Yesterday she came to my office and told me about it.

Rosalind is small and sweet. She was the cherished baby of a wealthy, powerful family. She had "everything in the world she wanted." Life was a great, golden fruit ready for her plucking. She did not know how bitter could be the seeds of that fruit, nor how acrid the juice. All was joy that came her way.

So it came that one night, when her head was filled with dreams and her blood with bubbles, Rosalind plucked at life. And the fruit that she plucked was forbidden.

Long in Hiding

For seven months she has been hiding in a city far from her home. For seven months, small, sweet, cherished Rosalind has sat in a hotel room facing for the first time, loneliness and disgrace. In that distant home they are making preparations for her return. In three months she will return "from a visit to Honolulu."

She will return with empty arms. The baby which she should carry in those arms will be adopted into some stranger's home and she will never see it again.

That was the plan. It is the customary plan. For the first three months that seemed a good plan to Rosalind. Then her baby awoke. And Rosalind awoke with the baby.

Faintly against the black wall of her desolation love began to flame—waxing at first, fearfully—then in growing splendor.

"I was so alone with him," she whispered to me, in her little girl voice. "All alone with my little baby—waiting for him to grow. We've dreamed together—sometimes I can almost hear his little voice . . . I didn't know it would be like this, Elsie. So wonderful! So dear! Hours and hours I've talked to him. Why, he has grown to be more than my baby to me. He's like my little partner. And now in two months they say I must give him up. But I can't! I CAN'T!

"Is it wicked for me to say I can't, Elsie? Will I be making all his life miserable if I refuse to go through with it? I've bought a ring —I've given an assumed name—I want to take him and go away and work and bring him up where no one knows our story. But if I do, we'll be poor. And maybe some day he'll find out. Will he hate me if he does? Have I the right to claim him, just because I can't bear the pain of letting him go?"

This is what I told Rosalind. This is what I am telling all that pitiful company of little girls who come to me in trouble. It is what YOU would tell those girls?

Listen, child. Make no mistake about this matter. You are taking up a cruel and heavy cross if you decide to keep your baby. You are, perhaps, laying a heavy cross on his shoulders, too. Only the greatest love, and a sane and dependable intelligence can justify such a procedure.

Heroic Job

If your love is only an hysterical surge of emotion, don't do it. If you're given to the habit of self pity don't do it. If you can't count on your own courage, don't do it. If you haven't full and perfect faith in your own convictions, don't do it.

In short, unless you're prepared to tackle a heroic job and put it over, in spite of the world, the devil and your own moods, don't do it.

But if your love is the very warp to the woof of your life, if you feel that you're right and are prepared to back your bet to the limit, if you're willing to forego not only the commendation of society but the consolation of your own self pity—THEN KEEP YOUR BABY!

For if you feel that way, and still give it up, the long drawn agony of the traditional hell will be as nothing to the agony of hunger and remorse which will haunt you to your dying day. But if, feeling that way, you have the courage to keep by your child, you need not greatly fear the world's scorn.

Cringe, and the world will leap at your throat as the wolf pack has always leaped on the wounded member. But hold your head high and the wolf pack will fall at your feet.

I have not written this in defiance of your marriage law. I have the greatest reverence for that law and a deep and abiding appreciation of our need of it. I have no patience with rebels and theorists who would abolish marriage and I never condone the selfishness which forgets the child's protection. But will two wrongs make one right? I think not. So I say, if you have greatness in you—KEEP YOUR BABY!

The Story of Helium

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

NO "romance" of chemistry excels in curious interest the story of helium. Nowadays the name of this remarkable gas runs as glibly off everybody's tongue as that of water or air or any universally known substance or element.

But it is only about thirty years since the first known helium was found hiding, as it were, in a laboratory, and revealed only by the skill of a famous chemist. In fact, it is only fifty-eight years since the existence of what we now call helium was detected anywhere in the universe.

It was found in the sun by the French astronomer, Janssen, in 1868. The spectroscope unveiled its "lines" and established its individuality.

Though nearly a hundred million miles beyond the reach of human hands, this stranger was dragooned into the ranks of the chemical elements and assigned a place in line. But nobody then thought that it would ever be drafted to the earth.

Great was the surprise, then, when in 1895, an English chemist, Ramsey, found it, as already related, in his laboratory. Careful examination disclosed that it existed in all but infinitesimal quantities in our atmosphere. It became a "curiosity of the laboratory"; then it was discovered that the strange "alpha particles" shot off from radioactive substances were in reality atoms of helium. Helium seems to be a final product from the spontaneous decomposition of that mother of elemental mortality, uranium.

But we are not going into the chemical history of helium. It is of importance in the development of aerial navigation that gives it, at present, the widest popular interest. Being next to hydrogen in lightness, helium stands high as a means of making great airships float.

Non-inflammable, while hydrogen is dangerously inflammable, it ranks ahead of the latter in practical usefulness and available for aerostation.

The use of helium for this purpose depends upon the fact, utilized late in the World War, that it can be prepared from natural gas in sufficient quantity to fill large balloons.

Since man is certainly going to develop much of his future history through his mastery of the air as a universal highway and a field of maneuver in both war and peace, the production of helium becomes an industry of national importance.

The United States Government has encouraged this work, recognizing that practical science has become the mightiest arm that a nation can wield.

From the Journal of the American Society of Naval Engineers one may learn much of the nature of the work done at Fort Worth.
